This unit was adapted from the Gabriel Dumont Institute (GDI)'s Bringing Métis Children's Literature to Life guide which uses their resources for units on Métis history and culture. Although not everything in my lesson plans are from GDI's guide, the lessons have been greatly influenced and built around ideas and stories as well as some suggested activities from GDI's information. I have added activities and details from my own ideas and experiences in order to enhance connections and to help the lessons fit better into the Alberta grade two curriculum. This unit can be adapted for other jurisdictions. GDI's resources are available at www.shopmetis.ca. This unit plan is intended to be printed double-sided. Blank pages appear in order for teachers to be able to add dividers at section pages.

Grade Two: Communities in Canada

- 2.1 Canada's Dynamic Communities
- 2.2 A Community in the Past

Grade 2 expands on the concept of community through an examination of specific characteristics of communities in Canada. Building on the introduction of historical thinking in Grade 1, Grade 2 students will examine how a community changes over time.

GRADE 2: Communities in Canada

OVERVIEW

Grade 2 students will investigate life in three diverse communities within Canada. Based on their understanding of their own communities, students will explore characteristics of selected rural and urban communities in Canada: an Inuit community, a prairie community and an Acadian community. They will apply their understanding of various aspects that define communities, such as geography, culture, language, heritage, economics and resources, in their investigation of how communities are connected. Students will discover how people live in each of these communities and will reflect upon the vastness of Canada and the diversity of Canadian communities.

Students will also be given the opportunity to study the past of their own or one of the other communities studied. Throughout the study, emphasis will be on the contribution of individuals and groups to a community.

RATIONALE

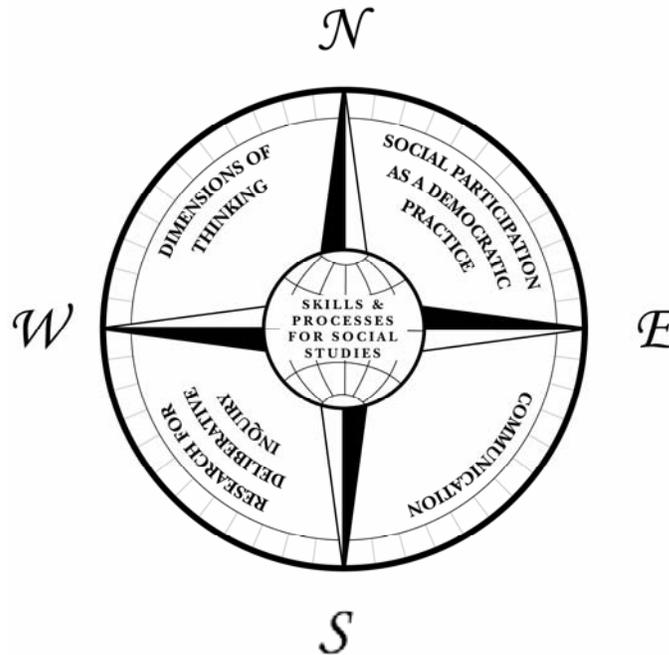

Grade 2 students will develop a process for identifying characteristics of communities within Canada. They will inquire into the defining characteristics of a variety of communities in Canada to foster an appreciation of what makes a community and of each community's contributions to Canada as a nation. Through these explorations, students will develop an appreciation of and respect for the vastness of Canada and the diversity of Canadian communities.

TERMS AND CONCEPTS

Acadians, goods, human geography, Inuit, physical geography, services, cultural diversity, rural, urban

General Outcome 2.1 Canada's Dynamic Communities	General Outcome 2.2 A Community in the Past
Students will demonstrate an understanding and appreciation of how geography, culture, language, heritage, economics and resources shape and change Canada's communities.	Students will demonstrate an understanding and appreciation of how a community emerged, and of how the various interactions and cooperation among peoples ensure the continued growth and vitality of their community.
Local and Current Affairs
In order to allow opportunities for students to engage in current affairs, issues and concerns of a local nature, the program of studies provides the flexibility to include these topics within the time allotted for social studies.

Benchmark Skills and Processes

The following benchmark skills and processes are provided here as outcomes to be achieved by the end of Grade 3.

Dimensions of Thinking
critical thinking and creative thinking	evaluate ideas and information from different points of view
historical thinking	correctly apply terms related to time, including past, present, future
geographic thinking	create and use a simple map to locate communities studied in the world
decision making and problem solving	apply new ideas and strategies to contribute to decision making and problem solving
Social Participation as a Democratic Practice
cooperation, conflict resolution and consensus building	demonstrate cooperative behaviour to ensure that all members of the group have an opportunity to participate
age appropriate behaviour for social involvement	participate in projects that improve or meet the particular needs of their school or community
Research for Deliberative Inquiry
research and information	make connections between cause-and-effect relationships from information gathered from varied sources
Communication
oral, written and visual literacy	organize and present information, such as written and oral reports, taking particular audiences and purposes into consideration
media literacy	compare information on the same issue or topic from print media, television, photographs and the Internet

2.1 Canada's Dynamic Communities

General Outcome

Students will demonstrate an understanding and appreciation of how geography, culture, language, heritage, economics and resources shape and change Canada's communities.

Specific Outcomes

► Values and Attitudes

Students will:

2.1.1 appreciate the physical and human geography of the communities studied:

- appreciate how a community's physical geography shapes identity (I, LPP)
- appreciate the diversity and vastness of Canada's land and peoples (CC, LPP)
- value oral history and stories as ways to learn about the land (LPP, TCC)
- acknowledge, explore and respect historic sites and monuments (CC, LPP, TCC)
- demonstrate care and concern for the environment (C, ER, LPP)

► Knowledge and Understanding

Students will:

2.1.2 investigate the physical geography of an Inuit, an Acadian, and a prairie community in Canada by exploring and reflecting the following questions for inquiry:

- Where are the Inuit, Acadian and prairie communities located in Canada? (LPP)
- How are the geographic regions different from where we live? (LPP)
- What are the major geographical regions, landforms and bodies of water in each community? (LPP)
- What are the main differences in climate among these communities? (LPP)
- What geographic factors determined the establishment of each community (e.g., soil, water and climate)? (LPP, TCC)
- How does the physical geography of each community shape its identity? (CC, I)
- What is daily life like for children in Inuit, Acadian and prairie communities (e.g., recreation, school)? (CC, I, LPP)
- How does the vastness of Canada affect how we connect to other Canadian communities? (C, I, LPP)

2.1.3 investigate the cultural and linguistic characteristics of an Inuit, an Acadian and a prairie community in Canada by exploring and reflecting upon the following questions for inquiry:

- What are the cultural characteristics of the communities (e.g., special symbols, landmarks, languages spoken, shared stories or traditions, monuments, schools, churches)? (CC, LPP, TCC)
- What are the traditions and celebrations in the communities that connect the people to the past and to each other? (CC, LPP, TCC)
- How are the communities strengthened by their stories, traditions and events of the past? (CC, TCC)
- What are the linguistic roots and practices in the communities? (CC)
- What individuals and groups contributed to the development of the communities? (CC)
- How do these communities connect with one another (e.g., cultural exchanges, languages, traditions, music)? (CC)
- How do the cultural and linguistic characteristics of the communities studied contribute to Canada's identity? (CC, I)

2.1.4 investigate the economic characteristics of communities in Canada by exploring and reflecting upon the following questions for inquiry:

- What kinds of natural resources exist in the communities (e.g., fishing, agriculture, mining)? (ER, LPP)
- What are the occupations in each of the communities? (ER)
- What kinds of goods and services are available in the communities? (ER)
- What impact does industry have on the communities (i.e., agriculture, manufacturing)? (ER, LPP)

2.2 A Community in the Past

General Outcome

Students will demonstrate an understanding and appreciation of how a community emerged, and of how the various interactions and cooperation among peoples ensure the continued growth and vitality of the community.

Specific Outcomes

► Values and Attitudes

Students will:

- 2.2.1 appreciate how stories of the past connect individuals and communities to the present (C, I, TCC)
- 2.2.2 appreciate how Aboriginal and Francophone peoples have influenced the development of the student's community (C, CC, I)
- 2.2.3 appreciate the importance of collaboration and living in harmony (C, PADM)
- 2.2.4 appreciate how connections to a community contribute to one's identity (I)
- 2.2.5 appreciate how cultural and linguistic exchanges connect one community to another (CC)

► Knowledge and Understanding

Students will:

- 2.2.6 analyze how the community being studied emerged, by exploring and reflecting upon the following questions for inquiry:
 - What characteristics define their community? (CC, I)
 - What is unique about their community? (CC, I)
 - What are the origins of their community? (TCC)
 - What were the reasons for the establishment of their community (e.g., original fur trade fort, original inhabitants)? (CC, TCC)
 - What individuals or groups contributed to the development of their community? (CC, TCC)
- 2.2.7 examine how the community being studied has changed, by exploring and reflecting upon the following questions for inquiry:
 - In what ways has our community changed over time (e.g., changes in transportation, land use)? (CC, TCC)
 - What has caused changes in their community? (CC, TCC)
 - How has the population of their community changed over time (e.g., ethnic mix, age, occupations)? (CC, LPP, TCC)
 - How have the people who live in the community contributed to change in the community? (CC, LPP, TCC)
 - How is the presence of Aboriginal and/or Francophone origins reflected in the community today? (CC)

Unit Preparations:

Most lessons are based on an hour class and depending on background knowledge students bring to the unit they may take more time to discuss and do. Remember—this is an inquiry type unit so depending on the interest of the students you may spend more time on one area than another.

Note: This unit will fit best right after introducing the main groups of people from Calgary's Past (Missionaries, NWMP, Settlers, and First Nations.) I explain that a lot of these people who came from Europe to the prairies were men. I tell the children they were lonely and wanted to have families so they married First Nations Women. The children they had made their own new culture bringing elements from both the European and First Nations Cultures which became known as Métis.

A timeline should be placed where it is very visible and accessible in the classroom. You will add information and dates to the timeline as they come up in the lessons and discussions.

Timeline

The timeline consists of a central horizontal line with six arrow-shaped segments pointing to the right. Above the line are three empty speech bubble boxes, and below the line are three empty speech bubble boxes, all intended for students to add information and dates.

Begin the unit by introducing Past, present and future. Put an addition to the time line with 2019 or whatever year it is and write the year it is right now and call it the present.

Show the video: Long Ago, Yesterday and Today <https://youtu.be/KTP-G6UEoJM>
(Converted version)

Discuss recent past, and long ago past.

Talk about how a decade is ten years, a century is 100 years and how in the beginning of Canada we learned that the First Nations people were here long before anyone else came. Then introduce that Europeans came. Just a note that the first wave arrived between 1640 and 1840 for the Fur Trade, creating dozens of small outposts and a European-style settlement in the Red River Colony, where the Métis became the largest single component of the population (Canadian Encyclopedia)—in grade two we mostly talk about the third wave, from 1840 to the 1890's as this is when most of the Europeans of many nations arrived and Calgary was founded. This should be a review as we have already taught about the coming of the missionaries, settlers, and NWMP. Put markers up on the time line for these events (provided.)

Explain that it was mostly men who arrived from Europe first because it was so difficult to travel and it was a hard life. Tell how some of the European men (usually Scottish or English Settlers on the prairie) were lonely and so they married First Nations Women (the early mothers were usually Wabanaki, Algonquin, Saulteaux, Cree, Ojibwe, and Menominee.) The children that were born became a new Indigenous people—Métis—because they were a joining of two very different cultures (some things they did and learned from their mothers and some things from their fathers and then they made their own place and became their own people).

Many of the first Métis men worked for the Hudson's Bay Company trapping and hunting. Many farmed as well.

This arrow represents 10 years. If you are 7, then you have only lived part way through the arrow. The numbers 8, 9, and 10 represent part of your FUTURE. The numbers from zero to right before your age represents your YESTERDAYS. The number 7 represents your PRESENT.

Introductory Lessons – Time Line

Materials:

Long Ago, Yesterday and Today (YouTube) or discovery education
<https://youtu.be/3jA3VFAO4JU>

Prepared timeline along front of class or somewhere very visible in the classroom

Canada's Bison: Restoring a Legacy (Parks Canada)
<https://youtu.be/OtF9QBQGMt4>

Lesson Part 1:

1. Show the video Long Ago, Yesterday and Today
2. Stop the video periodically and talk about how in the past things were very different in homes and things like cooking and cleaning were a lot harder than today. If you have any real artifacts or pictures of washboards, wood stoves, etc., show and compare them to what they use at home.
3. After the video draw a box on the board. Tell the students this box represents 10 years (write '10 years' in the box). Remind them that they are almost ten years old so this box would be more than their whole life so far.
4. Draw nine more boxes on the board in a horizontal line to the left. Explain that each of these boxes is like living their life ten times over. Ten of these boxes make what we call a Century. Count the boxes by tens and find that a century is one hundred years.
5. Point at the first box you drew that represents their ten years. Tell them that if we think backwards from their lives as they first started as a baby the entire wall back through those other nine boxes and then back through another ten boxes it would make two centuries or 200 years ago. Explain that we will be talking about a special community of people called the Métis who were one of the first peoples of Canada.

Lesson Part 2:

1. Do a review of the four groups of people who were in the Calgary area first (First Nations, Missionaries, Settlers, NWMP).
2. Discuss how back 200 hundred years ago there was nothing but tall prairie grass and wild animals, and that the First Nations People who lived here first were the only people for many hundreds of years and that is why they are called First Nations. Remind them that they used to be called Indians but that is not the name they prefer to be called.

3. Watch the bison video- stop it at 1:16 and ask students to look at the art and ask if they see any buildings, bridges, benches to sit and rest, walk ways, signs or any other man made things. Tell them that in the beginning of the First Nation's past, this is how it may have looked. Remind them that these people had no stores so everything they ate, drank, wore, used for shelter, played with or worked with had to be found or made by themselves. Many of these items came from bison.

Lesson Part 3: Time Line

Materials:

Two different colored balls of wool

1. Have two volunteers come up. Let one hold the ball of yellow (for past) and one person hold the green (for future)- leave a couple meters of yarn unwound between the two balls of wool
2. Tie a knot between the two colors of wool that joins them up. Explain that the future goes on way ahead of what we can see and the past goes way on back farther than we can see or remember. The knot is right now in the present.
3. Step closer to the yellow wool that represents the past and explain that you are going to cut the past (snip the wool). Explain that we are only going to talk about a small slice of the past and only the part that happens in our country of Canada and especially the prairies.
4. Add the wool so it follows along the time line making sure the place where you snipped the wool is at the beginning of the time line (just attach the ball at the beginning of the time line) Then put the green future so it lines up from the knot which is the present date
5. On the prepared time line, add pictures and dates of the four groups and when they appeared (dates).

The Three Nolin Stories & Lessons

Fiddle Dancer

Dancing in My Bones

Call of the Fiddle

Lesson 1:

Materials:

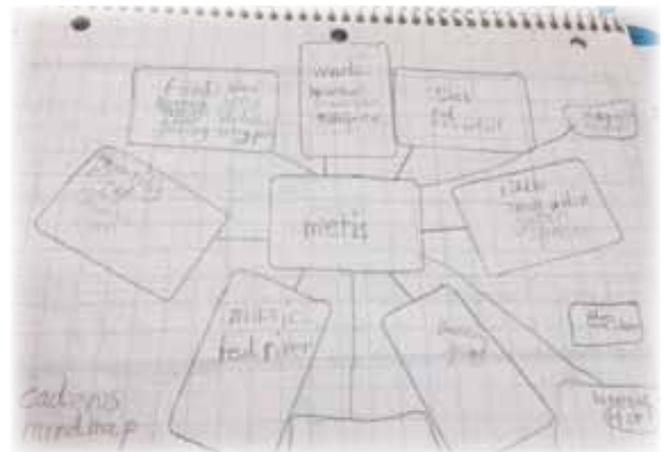

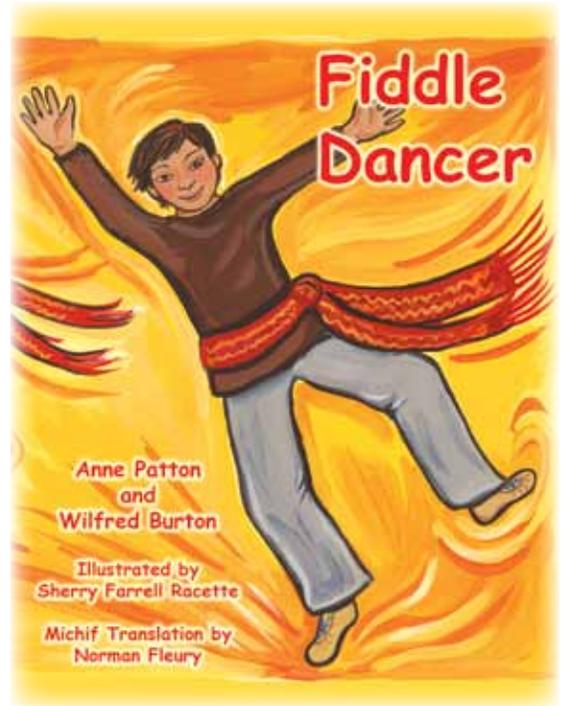

Scrapbook for each student

Domino for each child

Chart Paper with venn circles

Book and CD: Fiddle Dancer by Anne Patton and Wilfred Burton

1. Prepare mind map in scrapbooks- You can give each student a domino and have them trace around to make the mind map (see example) and then title some of the boxes with food, traditional clothes, music, dancing, instruments etc.
2. The mind map can be used to record learning as we go along throughout the unit.
3. Draw a large Venn diagram on chart paper to show similarities and differences between Métis and First Nations people. Draw on chart paper.
4. Prepare Fiddle Dancer.
5. Gather Students at carpet (with mind map already in scrapbooks).
6. Before Reading:
Show the cover of the book and discuss and predict what the story will be about. Browse through the book noting the pictures and anything curious they see. Introduce Moushoom (Grandfather) and Koohkoom (Grandmother) and jig (dance).
7. Play story (on CD) after instructing students to write things in their mind map as they hear them—stop for the first couple of items and write them together (things to write include: Red River cart, sash, flower beadwork, jigging, square dance, silk embroidery, voyageurs, bannock, etc.)

8. When the story is done, share things they found and add to scrapbooks. Listen again and fill in more information. Discuss as you move through this process.

9. Use a Venn diagram to compare First Nations (this is a unit already completed in grade two so they should be familiar with it) and the Métis. Fill it in as a group with the teacher saying one word and the students deciding where it belongs (use the lists below as a way to get started)

Note: Pictures for the Venn diagram activity are included following this lesson.

Métis:

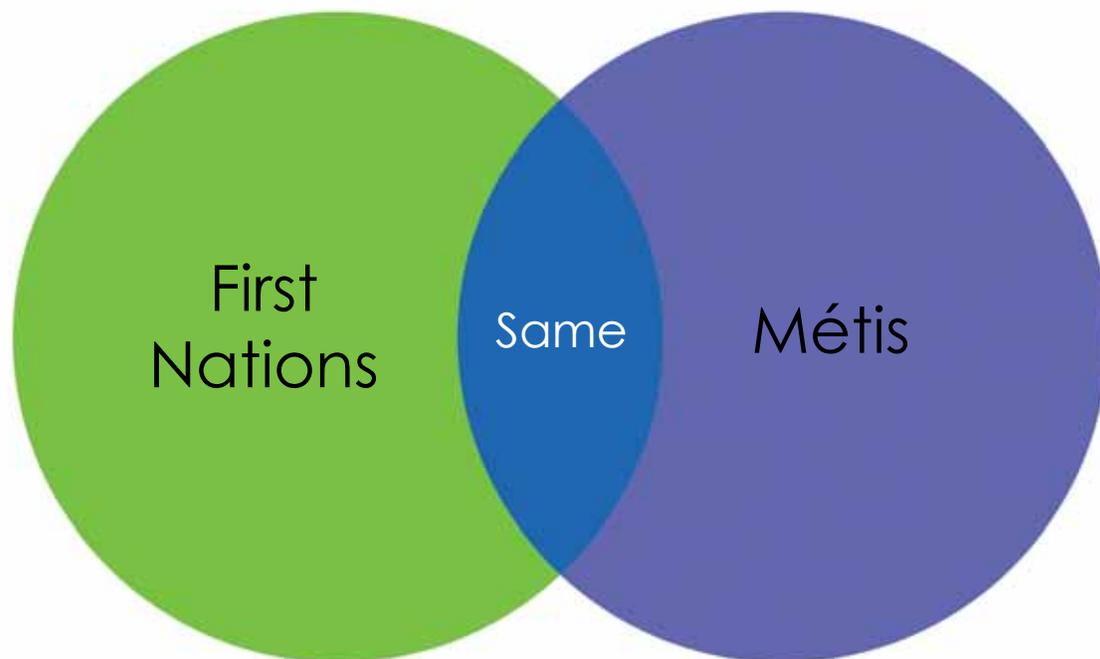

- Sash
- Métis flag
- Flower beadwork moccasins*
- Spoons
- Fiddle
- Jigger puppet
- Sewing bag
- Bison*

First Nations:

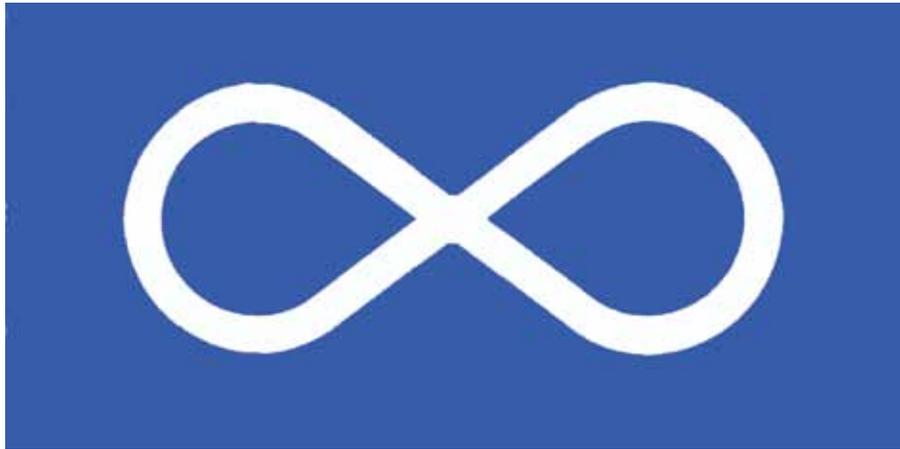

- Geometric beaded belt
- Treaty Flag
- Geometric design beaded moccasins
- Flower beadwork moccasins*
- Drum
- Pow Wow
- Pipe bag
- Bison*

Same:

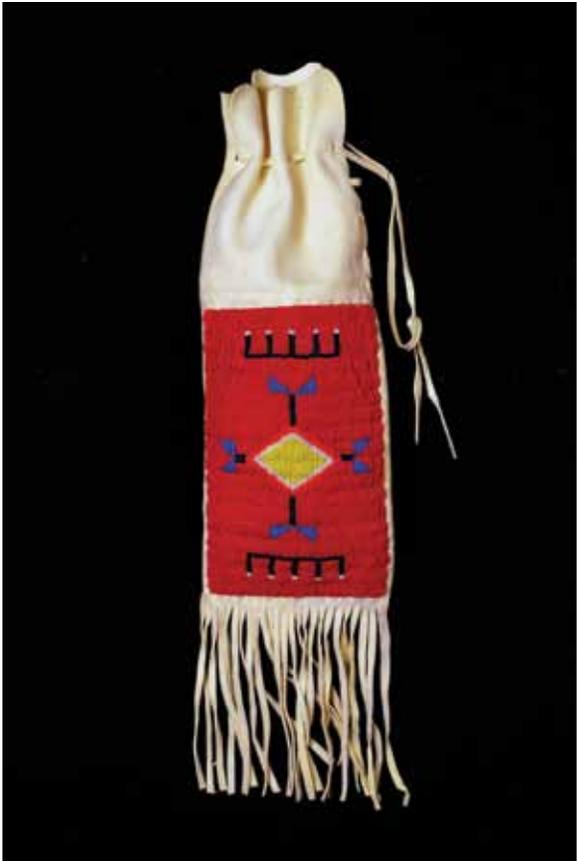

- Bison*
- Flower Beadwork moccasins*

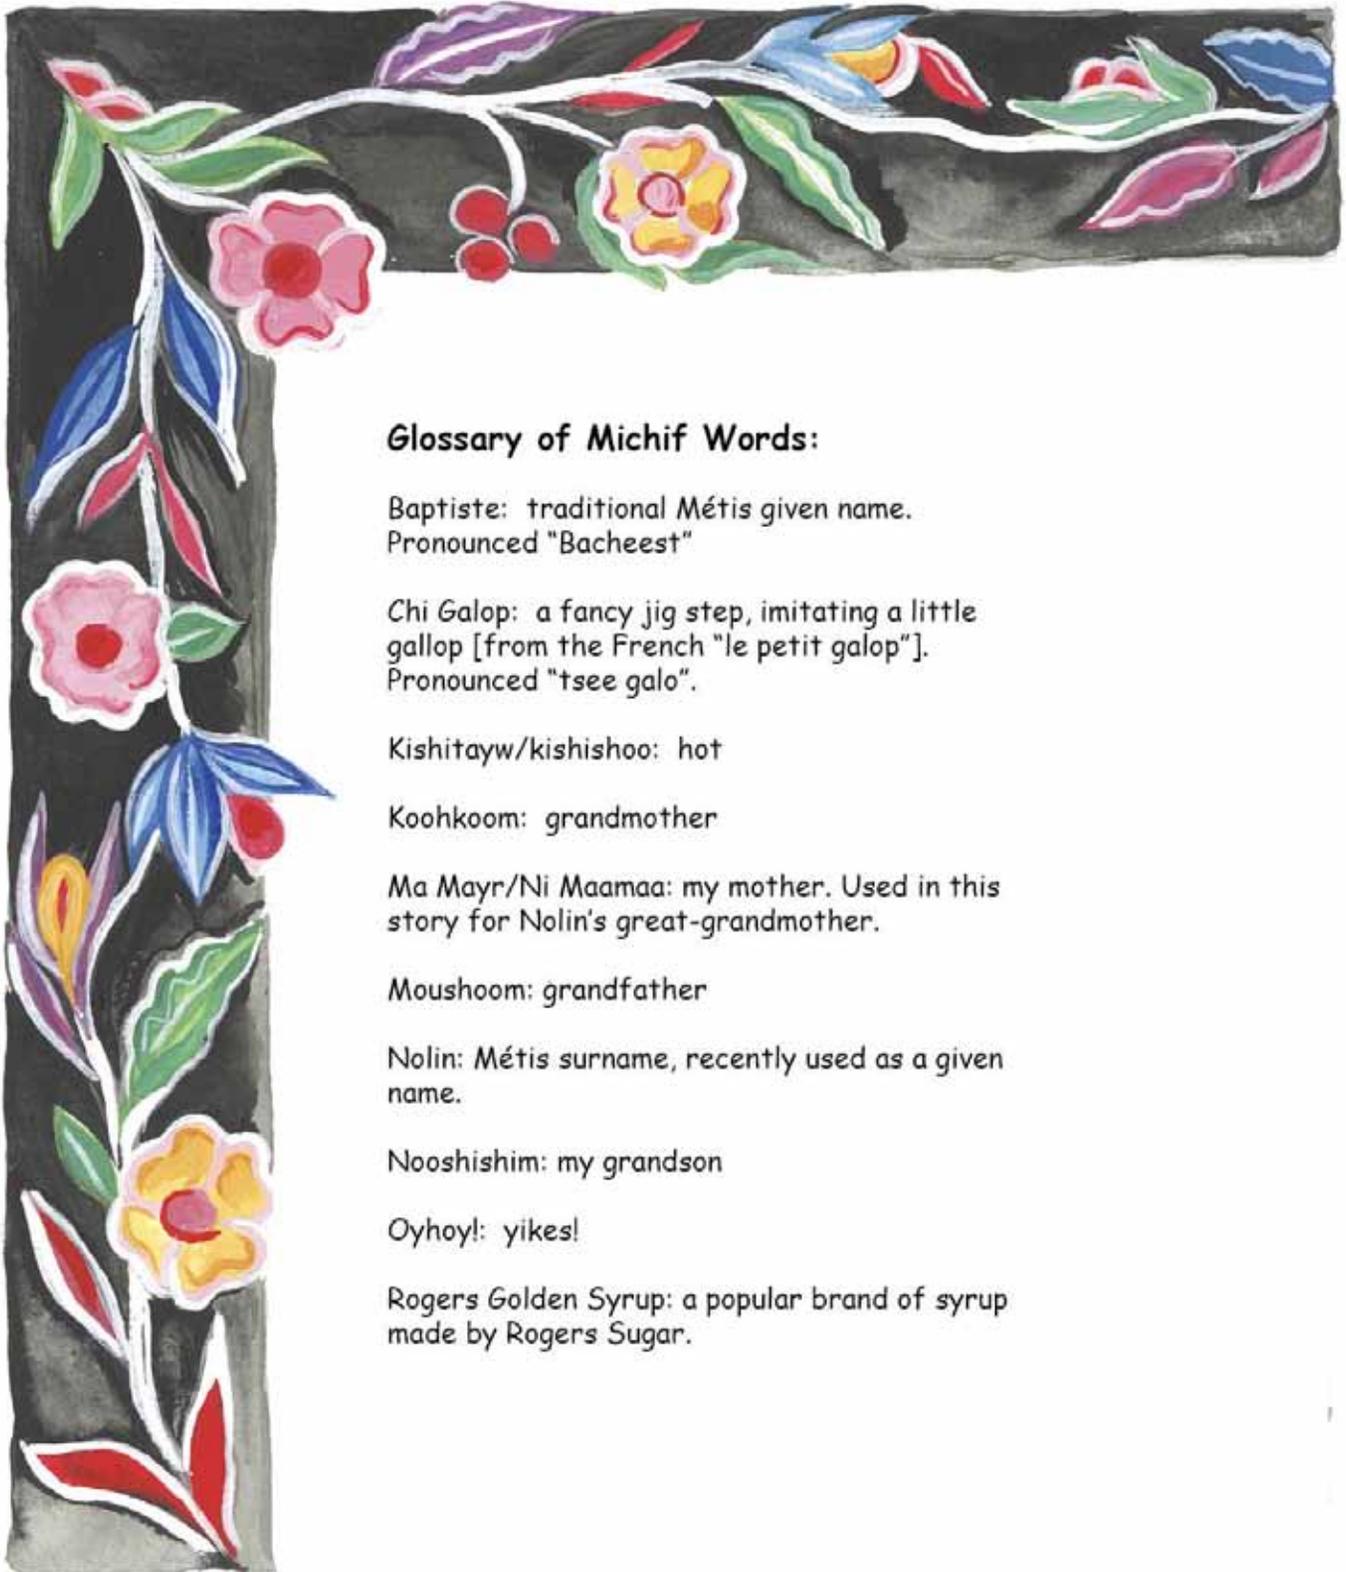

Metis Fiddle Tunes

Pow Wow Music

Glossary of Michif Words:

Baptiste: traditional Métis given name.
Pronounced "Bacheest"

Chi Galop: a fancy jig step, imitating a little gallop [from the French "le petit galop"].
Pronounced "tsee galo".

Kishitayw/kishishoo: hot

Koohkoom: grandmother

Ma Mayr/Ni Maamaa: my mother. Used in this story for Nolin's great-grandmother.

Moushoom: grandfather

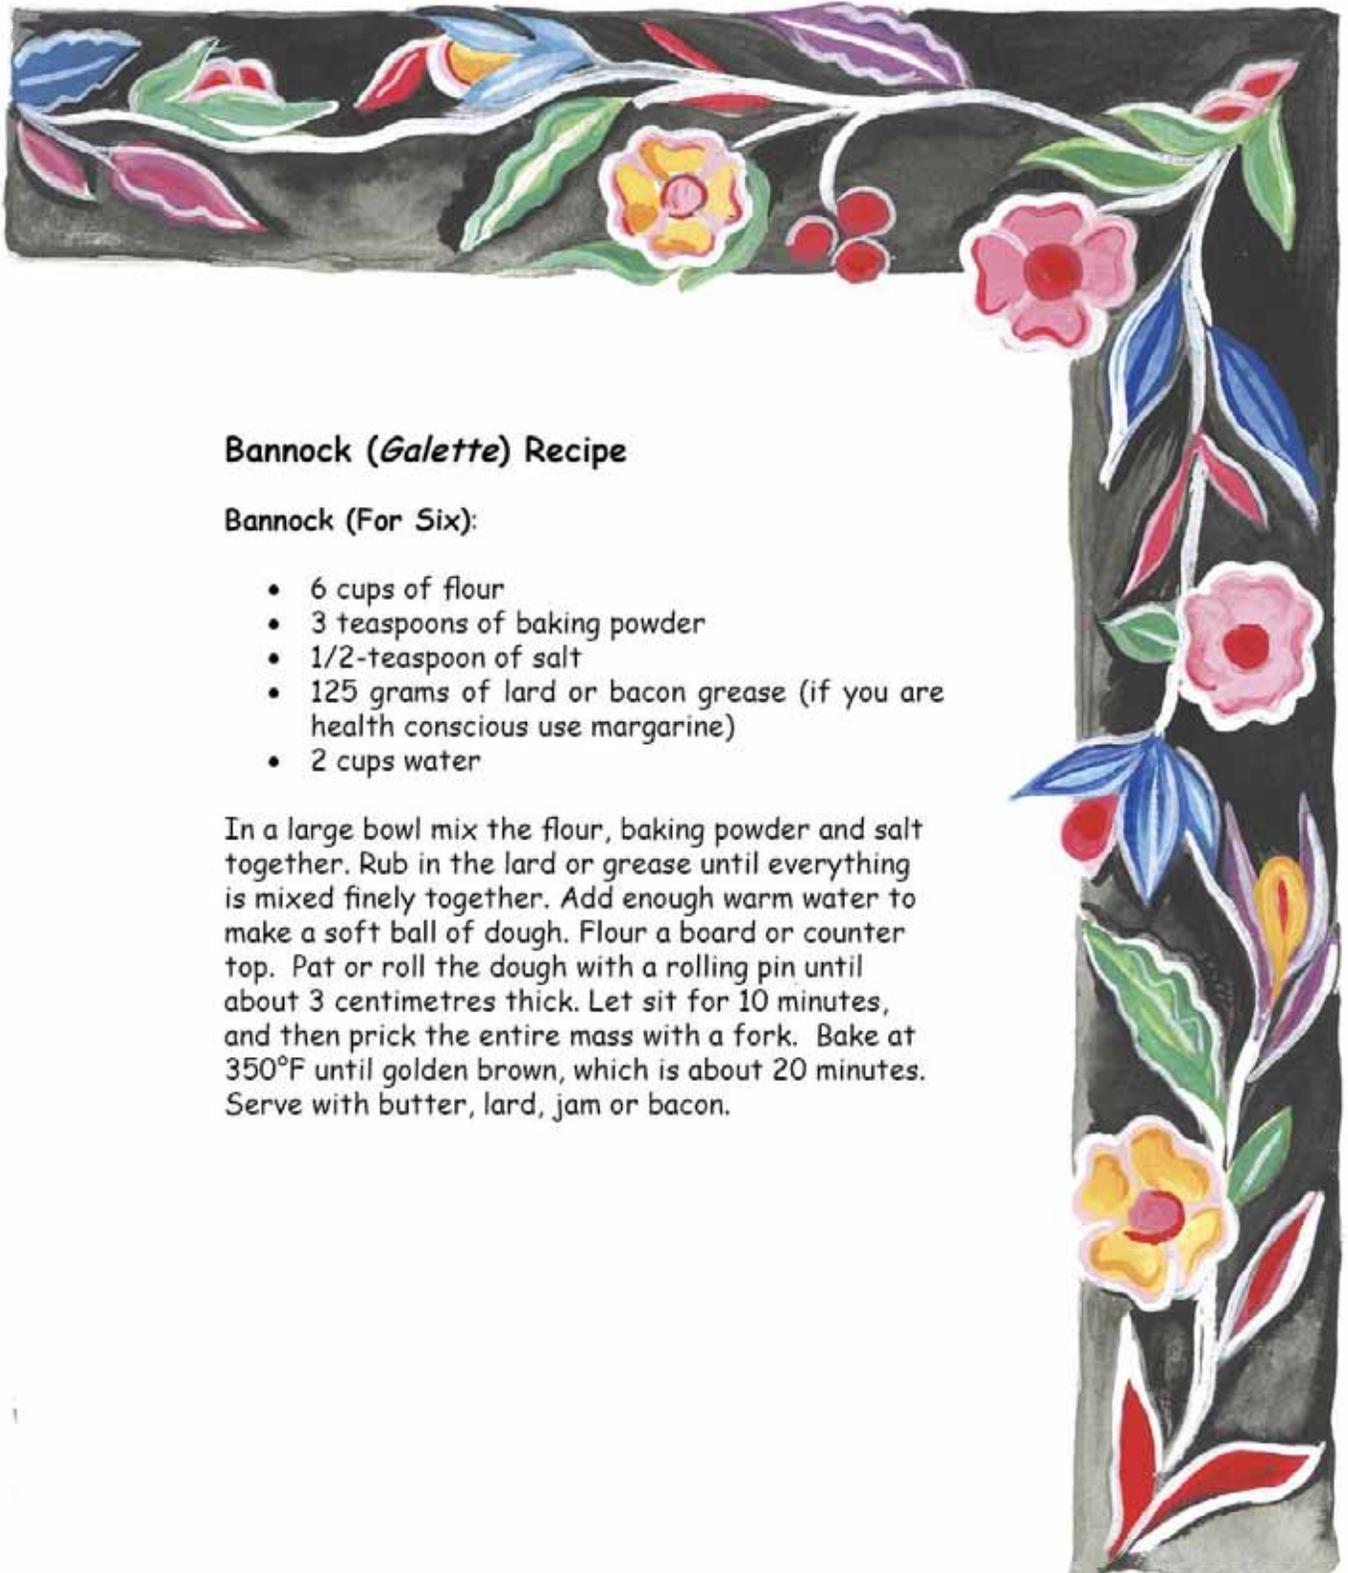

Nolin: Métis surname, recently used as a given name.

Nooshishim: my grandson

Oyhoy! yikes!

Rogers Golden Syrup: a popular brand of syrup made by Rogers Sugar.

Bannock (Galette) Recipe

Bannock (For Six):

- 6 cups of flour
- 3 teaspoons of baking powder
- 1/2-teaspoon of salt
- 125 grams of lard or bacon grease (if you are health conscious use margarine)
- 2 cups water

In a large bowl mix the flour, baking powder and salt together. Rub in the lard or grease until everything is mixed finely together. Add enough warm water to make a soft ball of dough. Flour a board or counter top. Pat or roll the dough with a rolling pin until about 3 centimetres thick. Let sit for 10 minutes, and then prick the entire mass with a fork. Bake at 350°F until golden brown, which is about 20 minutes. Serve with butter, lard, jam or bacon.

Lesson 2:

Materials:

Book and CD: Dancing in My Bones by
Wilfred Burton and Anne Patton
Color copies of pages from story
Graphic organizer

Listen to the story Dancing in My Bones.

1. Cut out and glue in the Graphic Organizer for Recount.

2. Writing into scrapbook

3. Do Before Reading:

You will need to place your students in groups ahead of time. There are 5 pictures (provided) and each group should have a different picture.

Introduce the book as the sequel to Fiddle Dancer with the same main characters of Nolan and Moushoom.

Browse the book. Can anyone make a connection to going somewhere with a grandparent? How do your family members greet each other? Do you have a favorite meal that you like to eat when all your family is together? Have you ever danced or played music with your family?

5. Add connections/learnings to Métis Journal in the Graphic Organizer for Recount Writing.

Glossary:

Áshtum óta: "Come here" in the Michif Language.

Beignes: fried bread; a kind of bannock.

Cutline: a pathway cleared through a wooded area.

Michif: some Métis people call themselves Michif, rather than Métis.

Midnight Lake: a village in Saskatchewan, at the southern end of the boreal forest, 80 km south of Meadow Lake.

Moushoom: "grandfather" in the Michif Language.

Nolin: Métis surname, now used as a given name.

Nooshishim: "my grandson" in the Michif Language.

Oyhoy!: Yikes!

Tourtière: meat pie.

Tourtière:

$\frac{1}{2}$ lb/ $\frac{1}{4}$ kg ground beef
 $\frac{1}{2}$ lb/ $\frac{1}{4}$ kg lean ground pork
 $\frac{4}{4}$ cup/175 ml potato water
 $\frac{4}{4}$ cup/175 ml mashed potatoes
1 onion chopped
Salt to taste
 $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp/1.25 ml each cloves and sage
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp/2.5 ml allspice

Dough:

$1 \frac{1}{2}$ cup/375 ml flour
4 tbsp/60 ml lard
 $\frac{3}{4}$ cup/175 ml milk
4 tbsp/60 ml baking powder
 $\frac{3}{4}$ tsp/3.75 ml salt

Add potato water to meat and onion. Cook until meat turns grey in colour. Add mashed potatoes and seasoning. Prepare dough in usual way. Line pie plate with dough. Fill with meat mixture and cover with crust. Cut slits on top of crust to let out steam. Bake at 350°F/180°C for $\frac{1}{2}$ hour or until crust is golden brown.

Lesson 3:

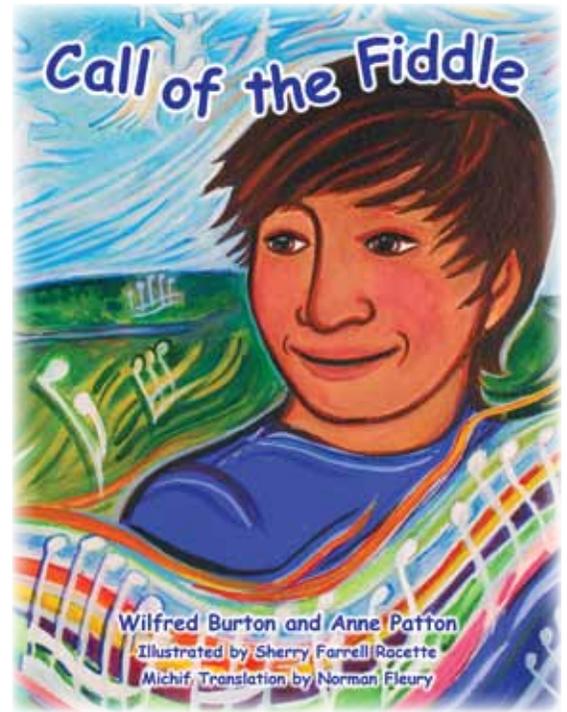

Materials:

Book and CD: Call of the Fiddle by Wilfred Burton and Anne Patton

Strips of paper or a page in the scrapbook to draw his or her own sash

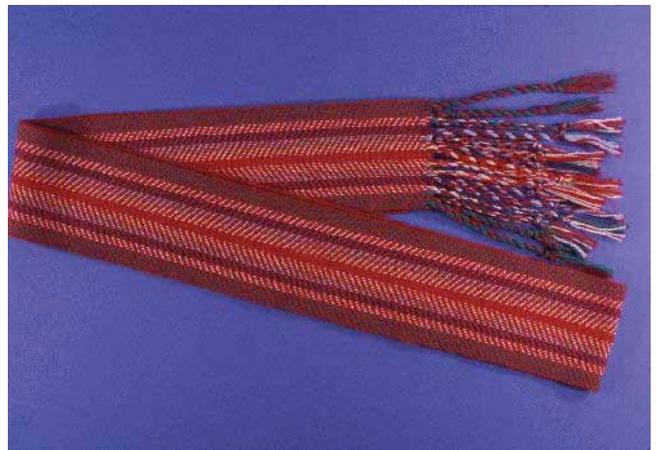

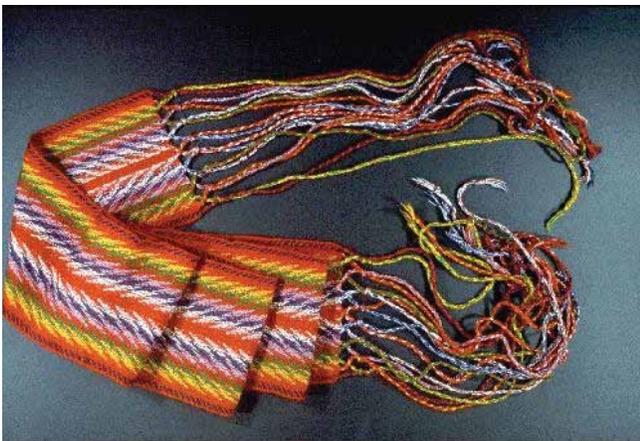

A sash to show if available

1. Do Before Reading activity from Bringing Métis Children's Literature to Life.

Before Reading:

- Using a real sash or a colour picture of a sash, share the importance of the sash to the Métis.
- Discuss the importance of colour. In this story, the sash is black, red, white, yellow, and green/blue.
- Have the students close their eyes and visualize. Say a colour, and then have the students turn and talk to the person next to them about the feelings and memories that colour evokes for them, and infer the symbolism of that colour to the Métis. E.g.: Green = "green grass and the time we went to the valley all the new leaves were coming out," etc. (The symbolism of the colours of the sash are based on the artisan's choice, drawn on their history and lived experience.)
- Compare student responses.

Bringing Métis Children's Literature to Life. Gabriel Dumont Institute.

2. Listen to Call of the Fiddle on CD.

3. Discuss the uses for the sash:

For example: to keep coat/capote closed, towel when travelling, to carry objects like a bundle of pelts, rope for towing a canoe or to hobble a horse, telling time by knotting a fringe for each day away, catching a girl to dance with, sewing kit, tying a key to the strings, folding it in half and tying it around the waist to be a pocket etc. Note that the sash can represent weaving cultures together or family connections among the Métis.

4. Draw and design your own Métis sash. Use strips of paper or a page in the scrapbook to draw their own sash. Make sure it follows a pattern. There are different sashes but the traditional Louis Riel sash is probably the most well known among prairie Métis. Different sash patterns and colours are based on the artist's choice and lived experiences.

Glossary:

Back to Batoche Days: a gathering held every year to celebrate Métis culture and history.

Batoche: a Métis settlement in central Saskatchewan. It is a national historic site now. Just to the northeast of the historic site is a field where Back to Batoche Days are celebrated each July.

"Danse du Crochet": a contra dance replicating the hooking or weaving of a sash. It is danced to "Drops of Brandy."

Koohkoom: grandmother.

Moushoom: grandfather.

Nooshishim: my grandson.

Procession: a solemn march. Each year at Back to Batoche Days, the Sunday congregation walks from the site to the historic cemetery to commemorate those who died in the 1885 Resistance.

"Rabbit Dance": a contra dance similar to the "Danse du Crochet."

"Red River Jig": a dance made up of two parts. The resting step, and fancy jig steps such as the "front cross," "bunny step," "Chi Galop," "Heel/toe," and the "Inside kick."

Shooshkwaepinikae: Michif for "show your steps" or "dance hard."

Voyageurs: teams of men who freighted goods and furs across Canada's waterways. The Métis filled that role for many years during the fur trade.

Wanishka: Michif for "get up."

Waltz: a slow dance done with a partner.

Lesson 4:

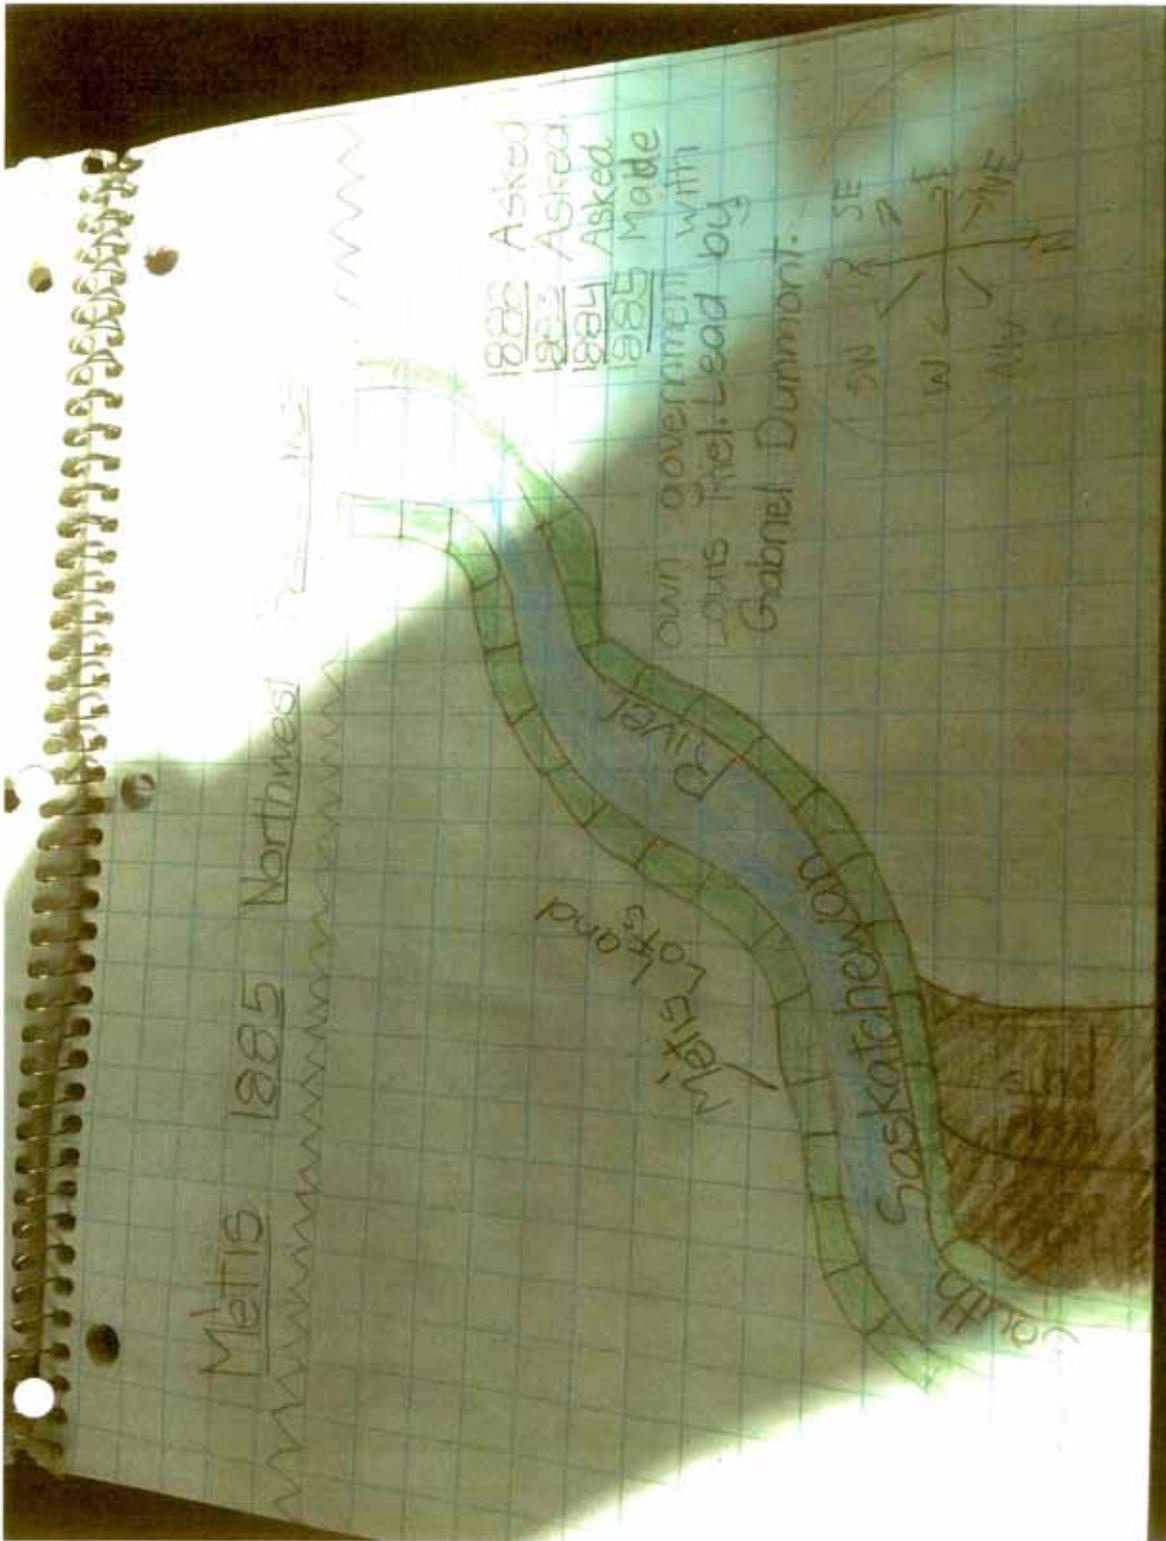

Materials:

Scrapbooks

Timeline (this should be available for students to see and so that you can add events as you learn about them)

1. Introduce the problem that arose between the Métis and the government of Canada
2. Draw and explain as the lesson progresses
3. Main points to cover:
 - Battle of Batoche May 9-12, 1885
 - 250 Métis and First Nations fought at Batoche against General Middleton (Government of Canada)
 - The Métis were out numbered four to one
 - The fighting went on for four days
 - Towards the end of the four days the badly outnumbered Métis were shooting nails and used bullets at the soldiers
 - The women and children hid in cold caves they built along the riverbank
 - At the end of the four days of fighting the Métis lost the battle and had their rights to the land taken away
4. Draw the South Saskatchewan River and add lots along the river. Label the page, Métis 1885 Northwest Resistance. Add bullet notes:
 - a. 1882 Métis asked the Government for their land rights
 - b. 1883 Métis asked the Government again for their land rights
 - c. 1884 Métis asked a third time to have their land rights but the government denied them
 - d. 1885 Métis asked Louis Riel to become their leader so they could form their own government
 - e. 1885 Louis Riel gathered the Métis people together and with Gabriel Dumont in charge of the fighting they began the resistance

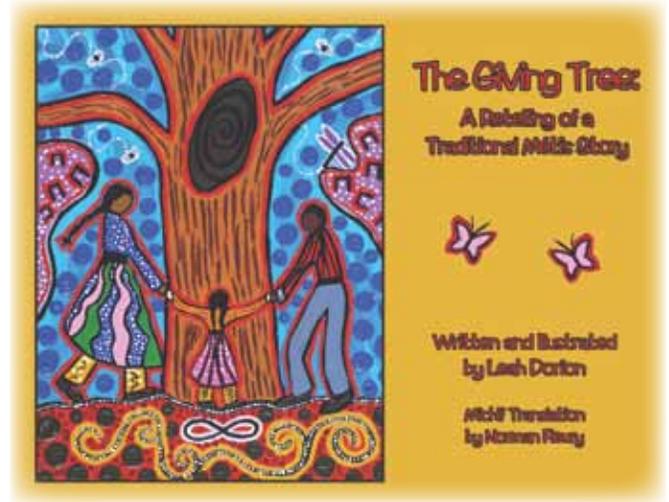

An example of student work, however, Métis river lots were narrow and long so that everyone had access to the river on their land.

Lesson 5:

Materials:

Book and CD: The Giving Tree

Two copies of organizer (What Makes a Good Person/What Makes Not such a Good Person)

What makes a good person?	What makes not such a good person?

Bringing Métis Children's Literature to Life. Gabriel Dumont Institute.

1. Cut out and glue in both copies of the organizer “What Makes a Good Person/ What makes a not so good person” into scrapbook each on a different page. On the first one title it (student name)’s Beliefs and on the second one title it Métis Beliefs.
2. Introduce story as a Métis story that Moushoom (Grandpa) remembers from his childhood. Tell the students that we will learn some of the things that Métis people feel are important in order to be a good person.
3. We all want to be good people. What do you believe makes a good person? What makes a not so good person? Have a good discussion about this and then send them back to their desks to fill in the first organizer with their personal beliefs of what makes a good person and a not so good person.
4. Do a picture walk of story.

Before Reading: Ask some probing questions to make predictions while doing a picture walk of the book, The Giving Tree, such as: Why is the tree called the “Giving Tree”? This story took place a long time ago, what is different now?

Bringing Métis Children’s Literature to Life. Gabriel Dumont Institute.

5. Read the story and stop at key points to identify the virtue/value being displayed (sharing work, helping others, honesty, respect etc.)
6. Discuss the values/virtues that were important to the author/Métis.
7. Fill in the second graphic organizer with the Métis values.

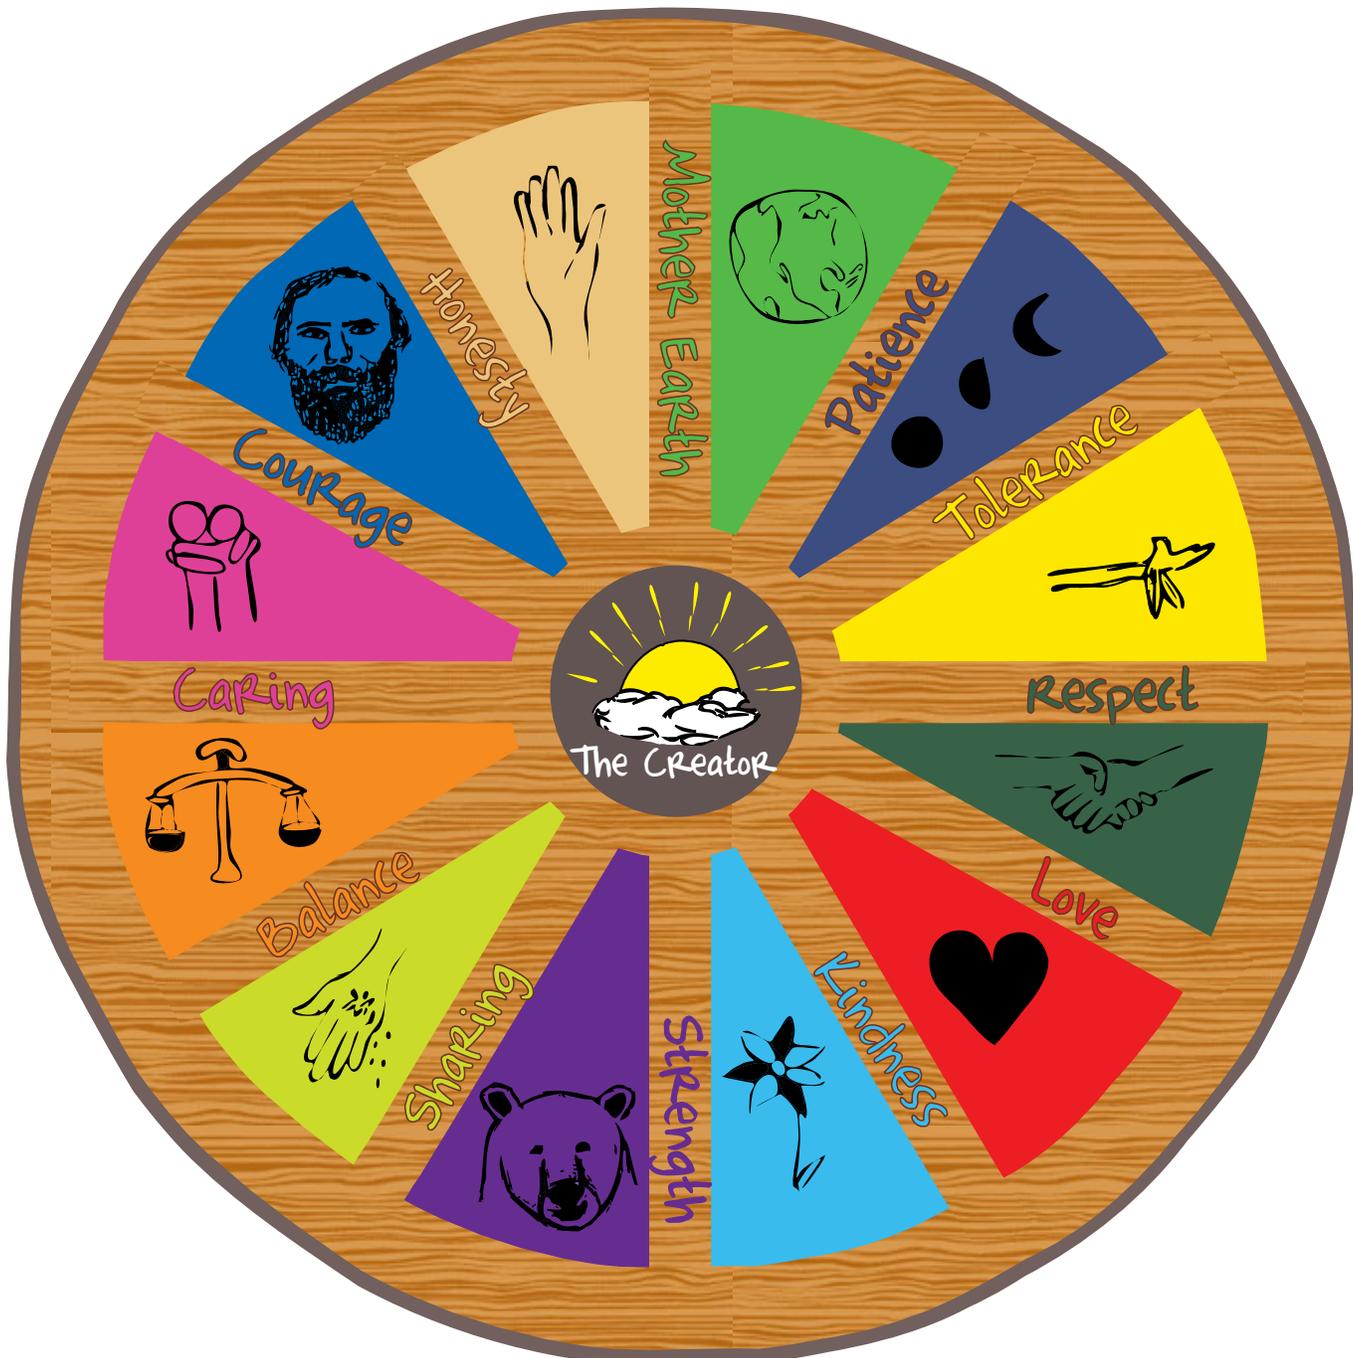

Lesson 6:

Materials:

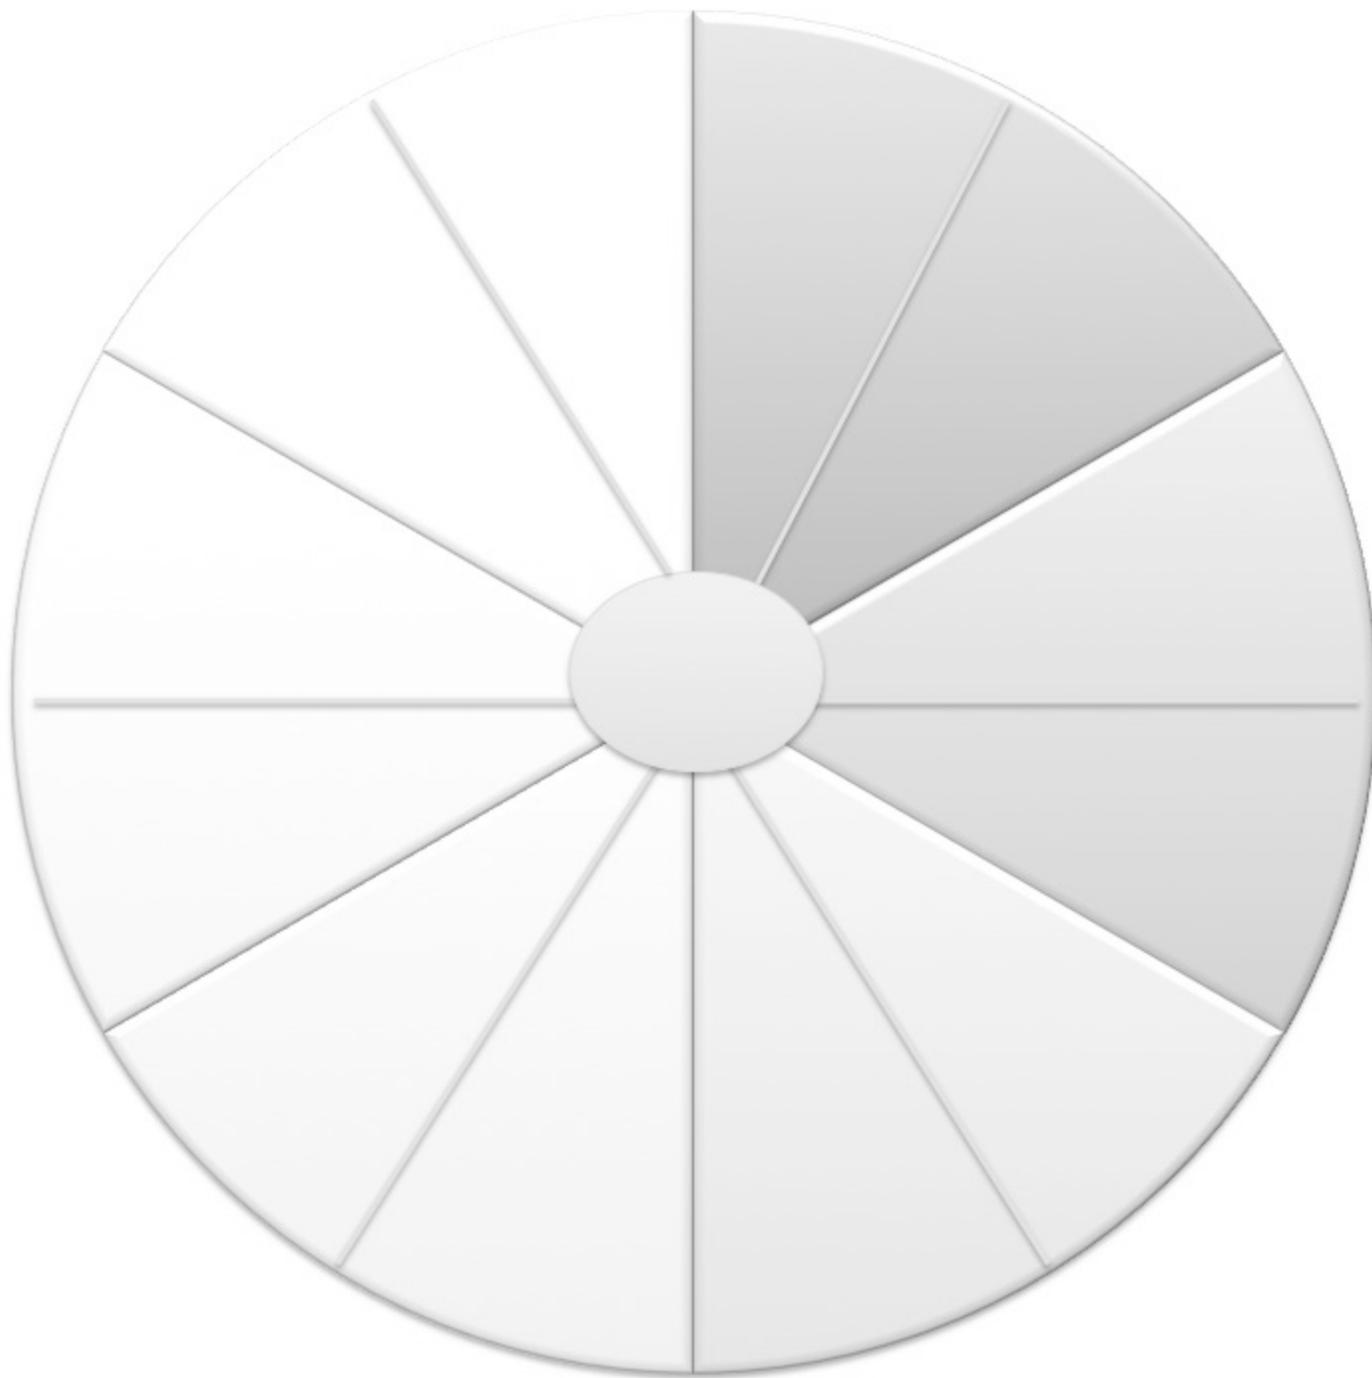

Poster of Red River cart wheel teachings from The Giving Tree
Scrapbooks

1. Show the poster of the RRCWT and discuss where in the story we can see these values or important beliefs of the Métis. Discuss what the different values mean, especially ones like tolerance that may be unfamiliar to the children.
2. Let the students draw the wheel in their books and label the pie sections. Encourage them to discuss whether they have some of the same values.
3. Optional Activity: Give the students a copy of the blackline wheel and let them draw their own symbols to remind them of the character traits that the Métis wheel shows or have them draw their own wheel of important character traits.

Optional Activity for Lesson 6: Draw your own symbols to remind you of the character traits

Blackline by Heather Doraty for Who Are the Metis?

Lesson 7:

Materials:

Picture of Métis flag

Sample of infinity symbol

Ishpow Daan Li Syel Reader

1. Show the students the Métis Flag.
2. Point out the infinity symbol. Relate it to the symbol that is on the Canada flag—the maple leaf.
3. Ask what if they have ever seen this symbol before.
4. Explain that the Métis infinity flag is the oldest flag to have originated in Canada. It represents the Sacred Law of Harmony and Balance. It is flown by the Métis to remind them of their responsibility to look at the past, present and future and to find the balance between the First Nations and European ancestors and the two cultures that helped to form who they are.

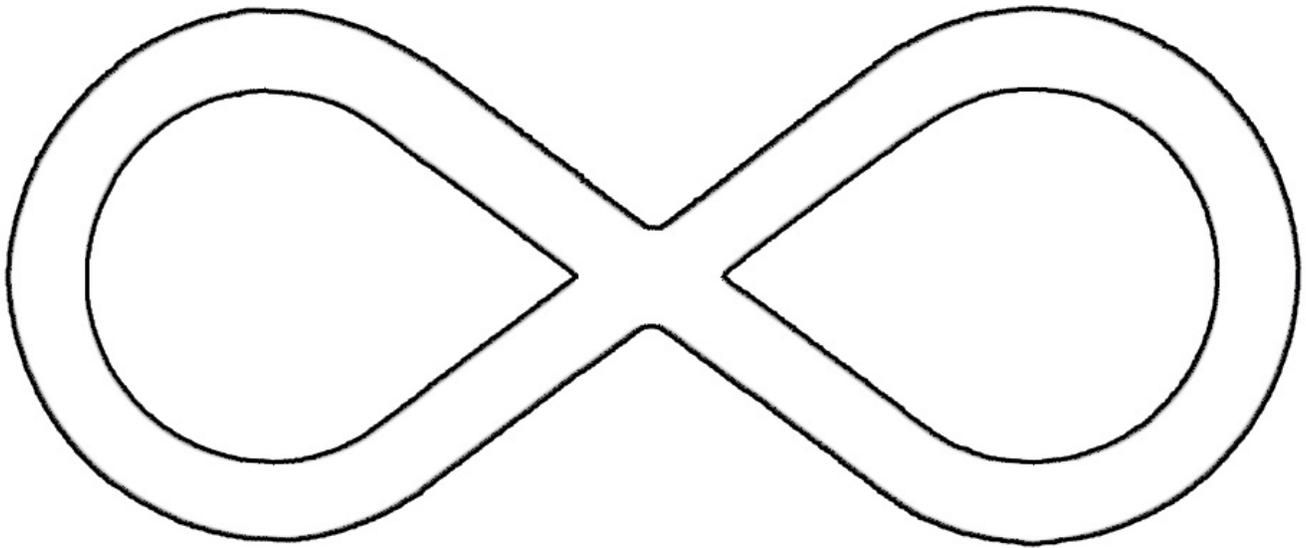

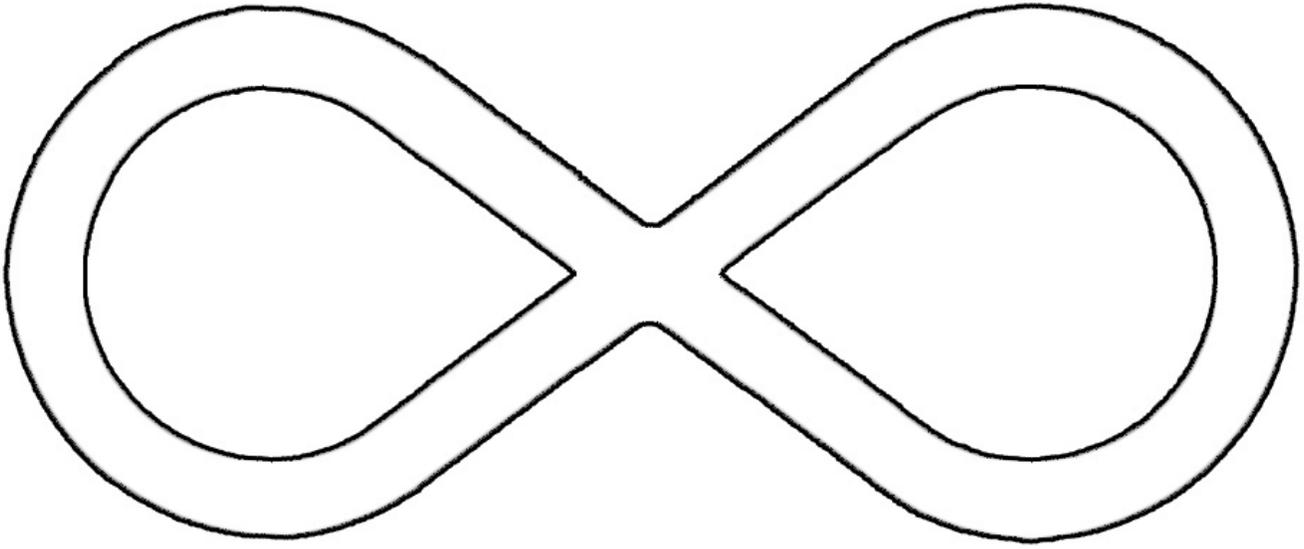

5. For many generations the Métis have used a three-fold decision making approach. It involved looking at the past to see what happened before, looking at the present to see what issues need to be addressed and then think about how the decisions we make will impact the future as far ahead as seven generations. Métis people believe this will help them live a balanced life.

6. Have students draw the flag and color it in their scrapbooks and then write a paragraph explaining what they understood about the Métis flag and what it means to the Métis People

7. Have students list meanings below flag:

- a. Infinity sign – let the Métis nation continue on strong forever
- b. Sacred Law of Harmony and Balance – a reminder of this law
- c. Responsible to look at past, present, and future
- d. A joining of two nations (First Nations and European) to make the Métis nation

3. Have students predict what they think is true or false under the column Before Reading.

4. Listen to the book on CD.

5. Discuss what was true and false. How close were their predictions?

6. In the story it talks about connections. Give students pictures or word cards with animals and plants. Have one student start with a ball of wool and roll it to another student after they tell how their animal or plant is connected to the one to who they are rolling the ball. They must hang on to the end and should have a web when everyone is done.

Lesson 9:

Materials:

Book and CD: Diamond Willow Walking Stick
Scrapbook

1. Introduce the cover of the book and look at the title. Who thinks they know what a walking stick is? Why does it say Diamond Willow? What predictions can you make about this story?

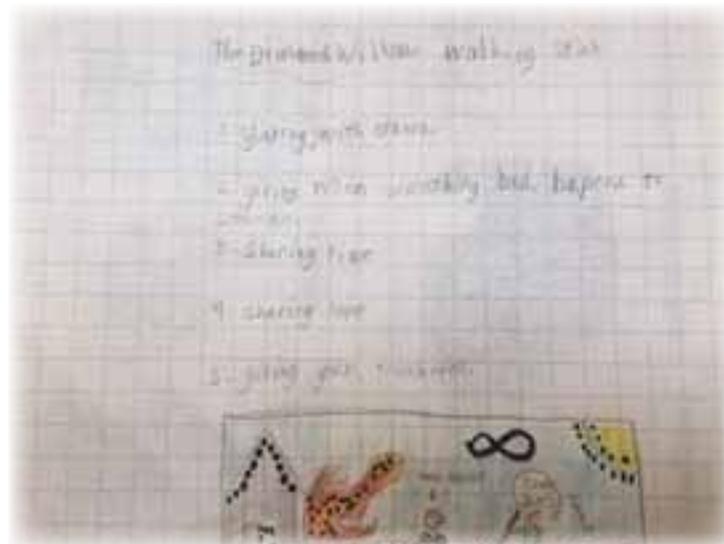

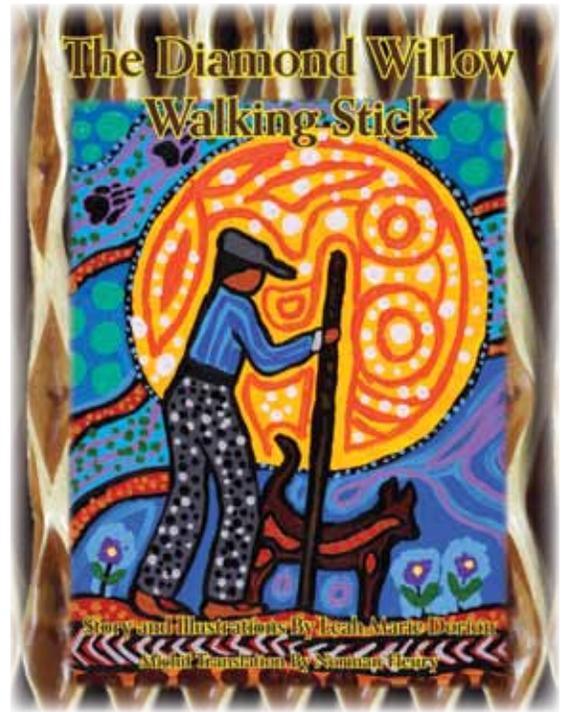

2. Listen to the story.

3. Discuss and make notes on what the story is trying to tell us.

Example:

- a. Sharing with others
- b. Giving when something bad happens to someone
- c. Sharing time
- d. Sharing love
- e. Giving your treasures
- f. What goes around comes around

4. Draw a picture from the story and write a caption that explains the picture (be sure to label).

the diamond willow walking stick

- a. sharing with others
- b. giving when something bad happens to you
- c. sharing time
- d. sharing love
- e. giving you a better life
- f. what goes around comes around

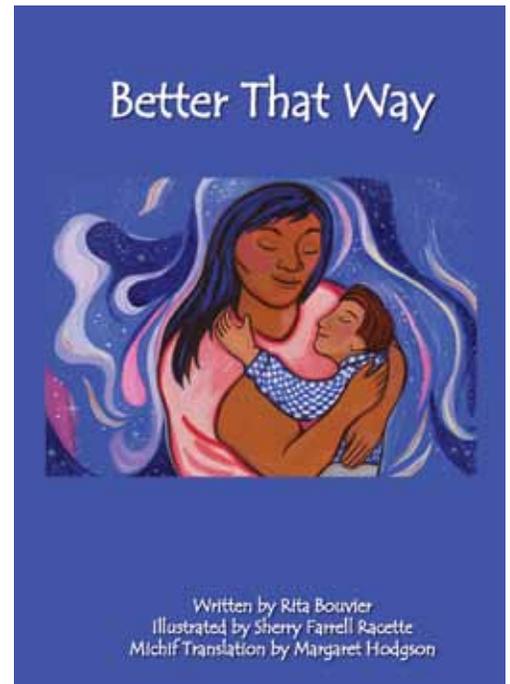

Lesson 10: (Optional)

Materials:

DVD: Better That Way

1. This one is optional- if you do it be sure to discuss how ordinary things can become the best memories (share a fun memory from your childhood).
2. Have the students orally share a memory that they have.
3. Have the students go home and see if their parents/guardians have a childhood memory to share with them.
4. Have the students write about their memory and/or their parents'/guardian's memory in their journals.

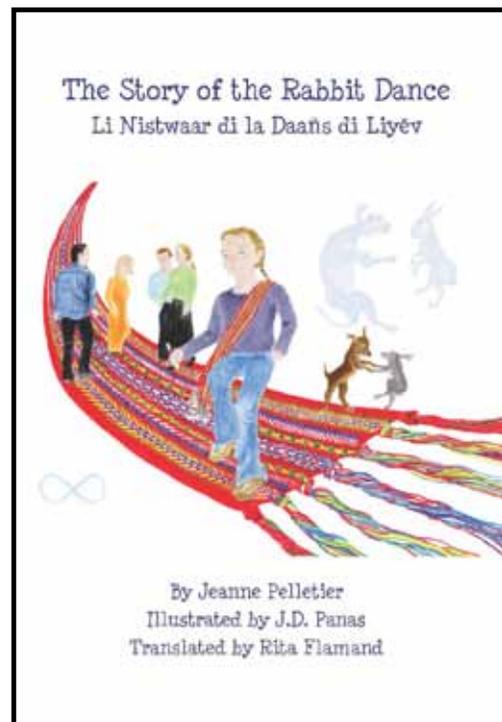

Lesson 11: (Optional)

Materials:

DVD: The Story of the Rabbit Dance

1. This is a fun story of how the Métis Rabbit Dance supposedly got invented.
2. Do the Rabbit Dance with the students if you are brave (taken from page 37 of Bringing Métis Children's Literature to Life).

1. Form two lines—rabbits on one side and puppies on the other.
2. Lead couple faces each other and holds hands with wrists in crossed.
3. Lead couple side gallops down the centre and back again. The others stay in line position facing each other.
4. The lead couple elbow swing.
5. The lead puppy releases the lead rabbit and chases the lead rabbit (using side-step) down the middle, around the puppies, down the middle and around the rabbits making a figure 8.
6. The lead puppy tags the lead rabbit on the shoulder.
7. The lead couple join hands and go to the end of the line. The next couple become the lead couple.
8. Repeat steps 1-7.
9. The dance is repeated until all couples have had a turn being the puppy and the rabbit.

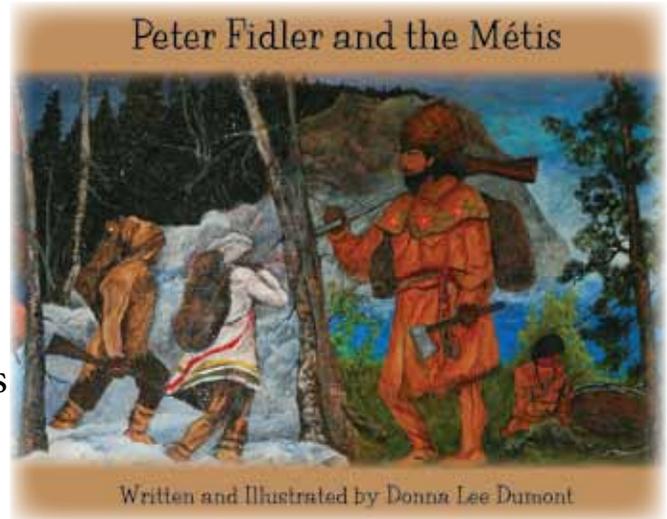

Lesson 12: (Optional)

Materials:

Peter Fidler and the Métis

1. This story is advanced so I just did a picture walk and talked about what was in the pictures and related it back to prior things we had learned. It was great for pointing out things like the birch bark canoes, the Hudson Bay blankets, the flower beadwork clothes, important plants etc.

2. Then I let them listen to the book on tape because they wanted to but it was a little over their heads so I think giving them a page in their scrapbooks to draw something from the story while they listen would be a good idea.

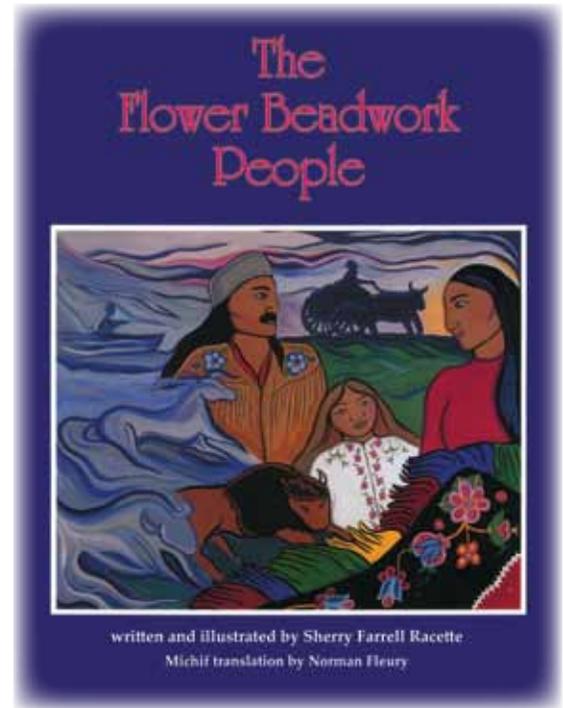

Lesson 13:

Materials:

Book: The Flower Beadwork People

Medicines to Help Us

1. Explain that the Métis People are often called the Flower Beadwork People. In this story we will find out why.
2. It is important to review the things we have talked about like past/present. Stop at the end of each page and discuss the pictures and the words before moving on to the next page.

This is a very good review with some nice added information—don't skip it.

3. Medicines to Help Us
 - a. Point out the flower beadwork design on the poster pages
4. Show the students how to make some simple flower designs then have them design a jacket or other piece of clothing with flower beadwork in their scrapbooks (plus colour).

1. This is an alphabet book that uses Métis people, events, etc.
2. Read through all the cards and review what we already know and what is new.
3. Display the cards on the white board so they are in order and can be seen by the students.
4. Give out the black line words and have students glue them in order in their scrapbooks.
5. Tell the students they can either use the blackline pictures or draw their own pictures (have the small squares ready) but it must be Métis connected so that they have their own Métis Alphabet Book.

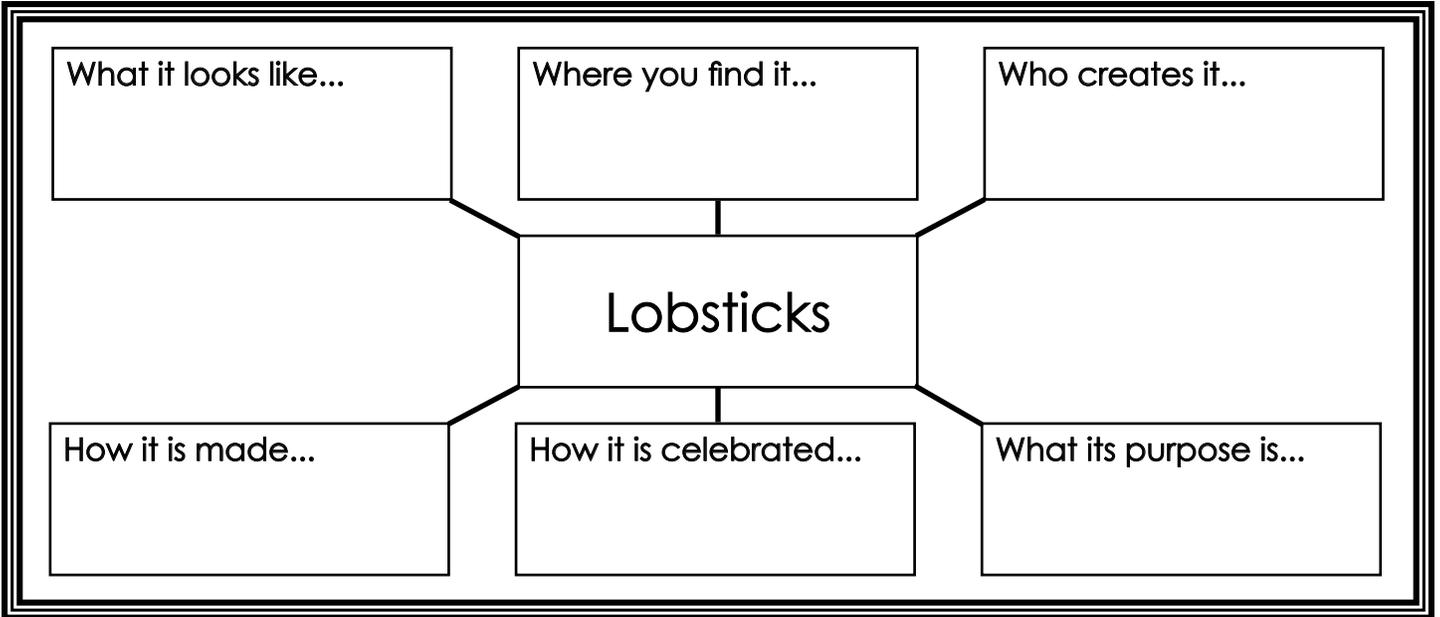

Graphic organizer for Lobsticks

Scrapbook

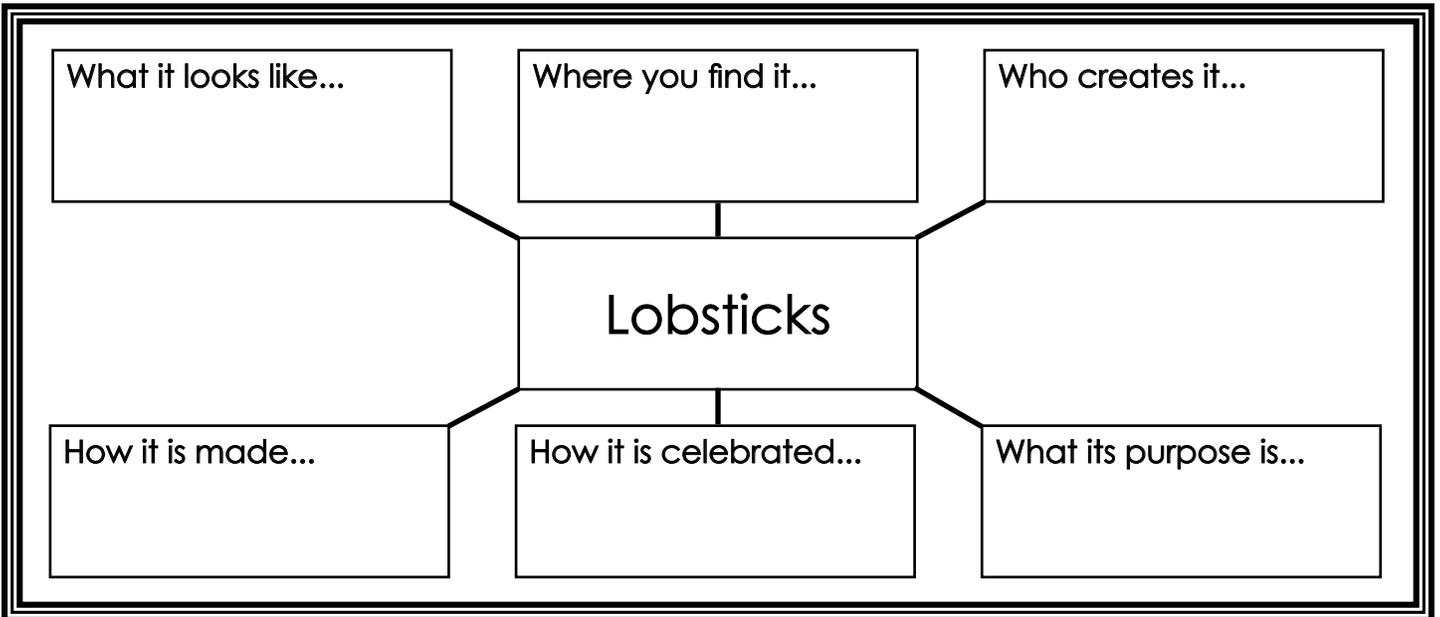

1. Show cover of book and ask if anyone knows what a Lobstick is. Can they make some predictions?
2. Listen to the story
3. Can we fill in some of the graphic organizer?
4. Listen to the story again and try to fill in the remainder of the organizer
5. Break students into small groups.
6. There is going to be a lobstick judging competition and there will be guests coming to judge the beauty of the lobstick poles but also their knowledge of symbols and Métis culture. Students will need to prepare a poster with a lobstick pole and a presentation to go with the pole.
7. Tell them they will be designing a lobstick pole with their team. Tell them their pole must be beautiful, and have symbols that tell some of the story of the Métis. It must use patterns (just like math) of the symbols and designs. Your group will have to explain what the symbols mean to the Métis people. It is not enough to simply name the item—you must explain why it is important to the Métis.
8. Tell them to plan it on scrap paper and then draw it carefully on the large poster paper. It should be coloured, labeled, and titled. Then they should write out their presentation and decide who will say what and practice it.

Welcome, Elders! We appreciate your attendance at our special Métis Lobstick Competition.

Traditional Lobstick Poles are made from spruce trees. Métis Lobstick makers form teams and enter into public competitions with Elders from the community judging the winners. The judges have two goals: firstly, to decide which team makes the most beautiful pole and secondly, to see who knows the most about their pole and the Métis symbols they have chosen to present on their poles.

Each group will do a short presentation and show their lobstick pole. You may ask questions if you like. There are six groups so they may have no more than 5 minutes per group (probably less.) I have told the children that they might not find out the winners until the next day or so in order to give you time to meet and decide as a group of Elders who the winning teams are.

Family Orchard

1. Tell students that it is a Grandfather (Mooshoom) who remembers what it was like in his Métis community of Round Prairie, Saskatchewan. This community (show map in book) is south of Saskatoon. Batoche, is north –east of Saskatoon. He grew up in a Métis Road Allowance community, which we will be learning about next.
2. Listen to the story and fill in a person pyramid for Manny.
3. Give the students the list of questions on page 79 to take home and get their parents or grandparents to answer.
4. When they bring them back, have them glue them into their scrapbooks and then have a circle sharing time.

This book is about family. Conduct an interview with a family member. Find out about your parents, grandparents, and maybe even your great-grand parents!

Here are some questions to help you fill out a family orchard.

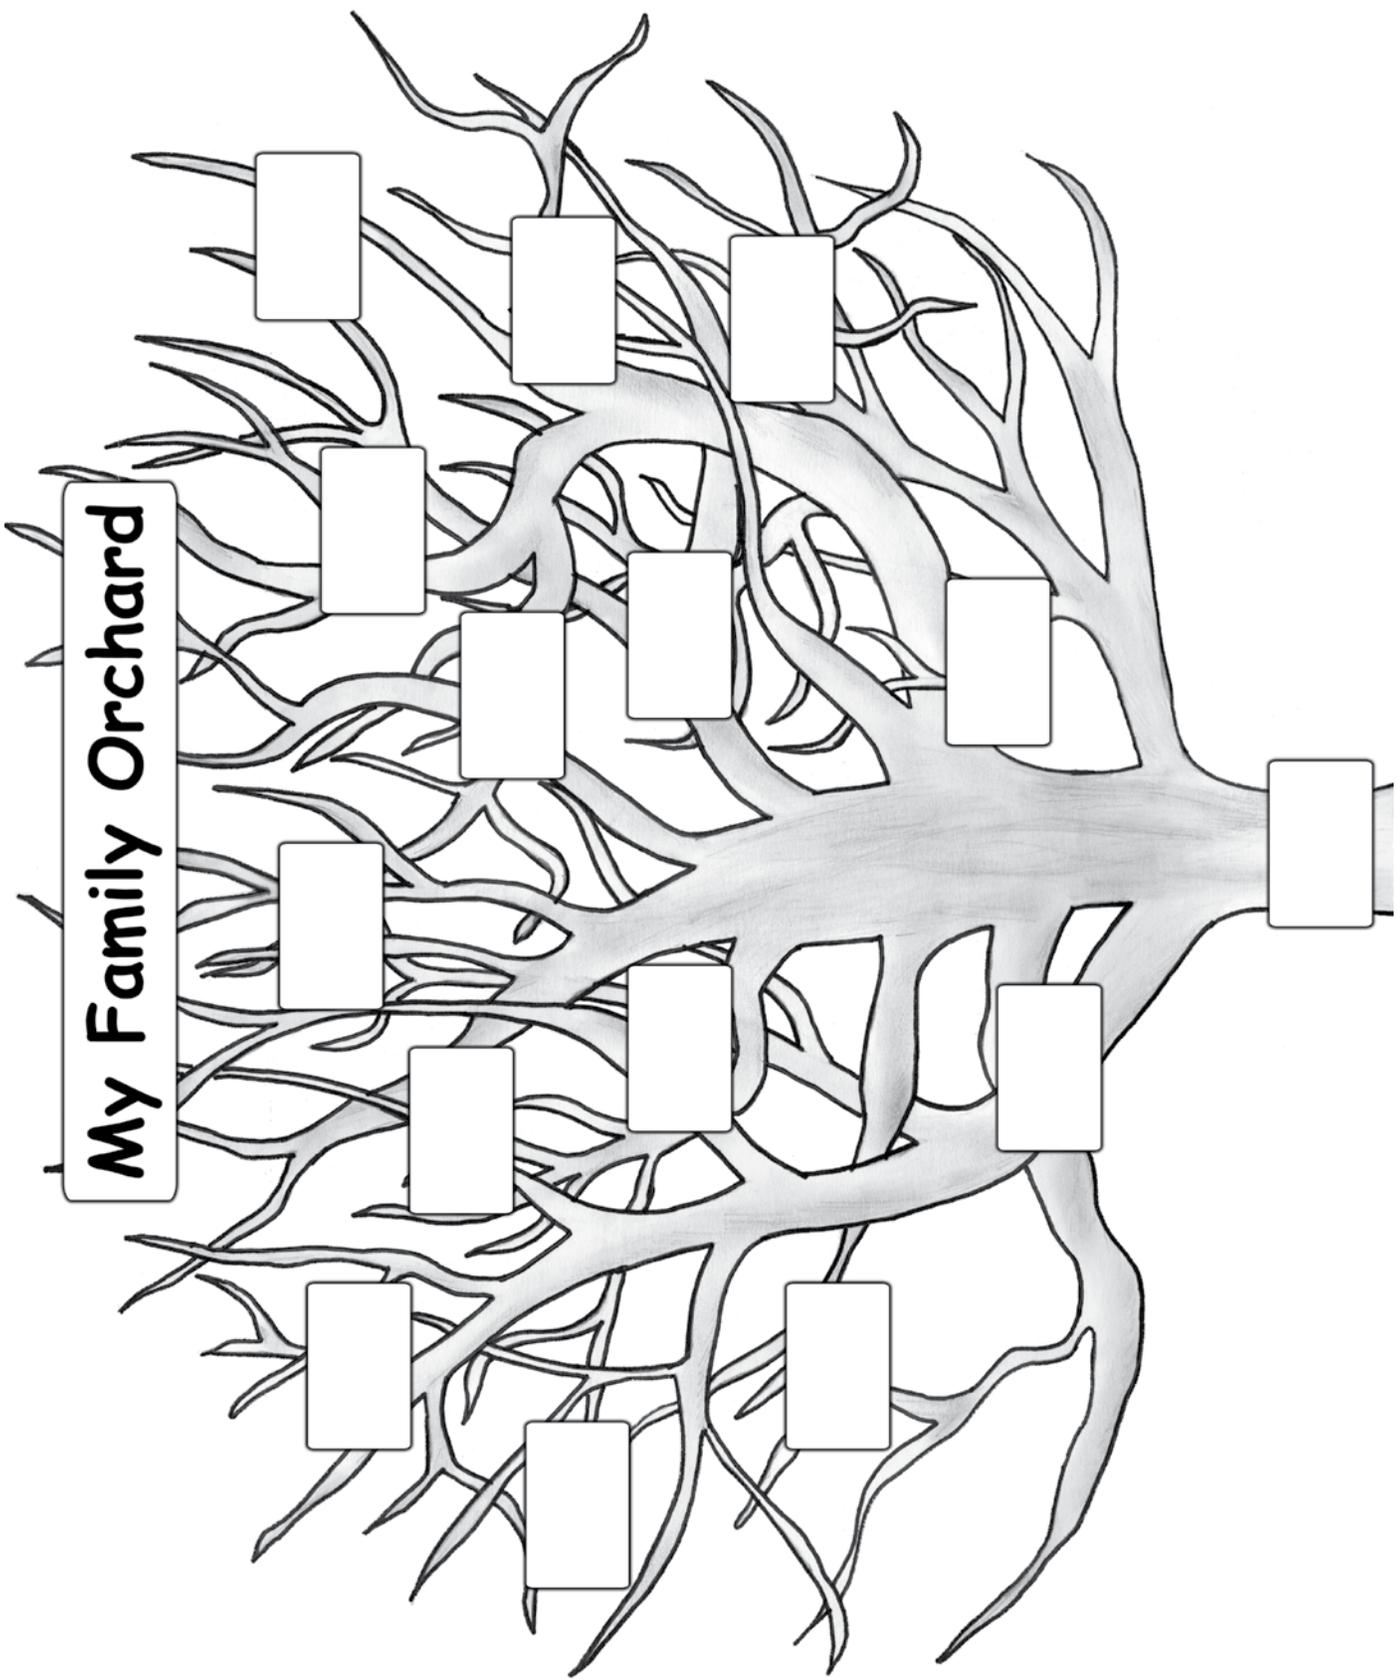

Make sure to bring it back along with some stories to share with the class.

1. What is your name (given and surname)?
2. What was your childhood like? Do you remember anything from when you were my age?
3. Where did you go to school? What grade did you finish?
4. What did you think was fun when you went to school?
5. What kind of work or chores did you and your family have to do when you were a child?

Get your parents to help you fill out your family orchard with family who is important to you. Label how you are related (brother, step-sister, grandmother, cousin, etc.) If you like, you may bring in a piece of memorabilia from your family to help you share about your family heritage.

Pre-amble notes to understanding the story

1. Share the pre-amble information (this will take quite a while and you may want to break it up into two parts, but for sure take a break to discuss/shoulder partner/etc.)
2. Have volunteers come up and hold vocabulary words—what do they know about these words—clarify meanings
3. Mood—discuss what mood is. The mood of the story is the feeling you have when listening to or reading a text. Tell them to think about the different moods in the story. Do you feel different at the beginning of the story than you do in the middle or the end?
4. Listen to the story.
5. Question: why do you think it is important for us to know this part of Métis history? Can you learn something from it? What does this have to do with the saying “Home is Where the Heart is?”
6. Write about the story and what you learned in your Métis journal.

Road Allowance Métis—Saskatchewan Prairie Communities

Pre-amble to Understanding Road Allowance Kitten

Home is Where the Heart Is

1. Road allowances are strips of land owned by the government and kept in case they want to build a road or roads.
2. Many Métis were displaced from their traditional homes and lands following the 1885 Resistance and made new homes on road allowances.
3. Many Métis were very poor. They worked for farmers, picking rocks and roots, clearing trees and other manual labour (heavy and hard work). They were paid the very smallest amount of money and sometimes given food instead of cash. As a result they could not afford to buy land or rent a home for their family.
4. So they did what is sometimes called squatting. They built houses on the road allowances out of discarded lumber or logs and various recycled material.
5. Sometimes the Métis would hunt and pick berries and grow gardens to feed themselves and sometimes sell, but the government made a law saying they could not hunt and dtrap without a licence and only at certain times of the year. They would get expensive fines they could not pay and then sometimes were sent to jail.
6. Because they didn't pay property tax on their land, their children were not allowed to go to school, and those who did go to school were often teased and bullied. I the 1940s, all children in Saskatchewan could go to school for free.
7. The Farm Rehabilitation Act in 1935 said that Métis could no longer live on the road allowance land and were forced to move away. Many were sent to Green Lake in the north.
8. Some of the road allowance communities were burned down as they left.
9. The Saskatchewan government never consulted the Métis about whether they wanted to leave. They had loved their homes and enjoyed dancing to lively fiddle music and visiting with each other in the community. Even though life was difficult on the road allowance, it was still their home. Even though they were poor, they were rich in so many other ways.

Who are the Métis Review Cards

Métis Learning Page

The Métis are one of three distinct Indigenous groups in Canada as identified in the Canadian Constitution of 1982. The Métis can trace their heritage to both First Nations and European ancestors. A distinct Métis identity emerged during the fur trade in the late 1700s. Since then, they have developed their own unique culture, including the Michif languages, as well as customs, traditions, and way of life. According to the Métis National Council, “Métis means a person who self-identifies as Métis, is distinct from other Aboriginal peoples, is of historic Métis Nation ancestry and who is accepted by the Métis Nation.”

The Métis have been known by many other names throughout history: Halfbreeds, Bois-Brûlés (Burnt Wood), Flower Beadwork People, Mixed Bloods, Michif, Country Born, and Apihtaagooshishaan. Most of the terms are not used today. Otipaymishowuk, (“Those Who Own Themselves”) is another way Indigenous nations referred to the Métis.

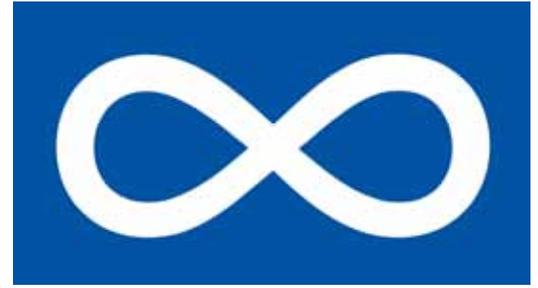

Batoche, Saskatchewan is the site of the 1885 Resistance. Historically, it was a Métis settlement named after Xavier Letendre dit Batoche (a local merchant and trader). It is located on the east bank of the South Saskatchewan River, and was designed in the river lot system. The village had stores, a post office, a school, a Roman Catholic Church, and was home to many Métis families. It became a National Historic Site of Canada in 1923.

The rectory at Batoche shows the bullet holes from the Gatling gun used by the Canadian troops during the 1885 Resistance.

The Métis flag is blue or red with a white infinity symbol in the middle. You will see the blue and white flag most often. It is the oldest flag to have originated in Canada. The infinity sign symbolizes two cultures coming together to unify and become one.

Michif is the language of the Métis. In general, Michif combines Cree verbs and French nouns with their associated grammar. Michif is an oral language emerging in the 1700s. In Saskatchewan, there are three Michif languages: Heritage Michif, Northern Michif, and Michif French.

Some Michif Words:

- Mooshoom - Grandfather
- Piihtikway - Come in
- Taanishi kiiya? - How are you?
- Nimanaandow - I'm fine

More Vocabulary

Bison	A large animal that roamed freely on the Plains of Canada and the United States. This animal was used as the main food supply to the First Nations and Métis people in the area.
Canoe	A light boat that is hand paddled. It was originally made from birchbark. The boat is long and narrow and first used by traders to travel in land waterways.
Capote	A type of hooded coat that was made from a wool blanket. This type of coat was very popular in the winter because it was light but very warm.
Cariole	A sled that had a box structure on wood runners. Pulled by dogs or horses, these were used as winter transportation.
Celebrations	A happy occasion where people get together to visit, dance, or to honour a religious event.
Concertina	A small accordion-like musical instrument that used bellows.
Embroidery	A method of handsewing with coloured thread for the purpose of decoration.
Fiddle	A home-made violin made by the Métis during the nineteenth century.
Fur Trade	A business in which companies brought European goods to North America to be traded for furs of animals trapped by First Nations and Métis trappers.
Leggings	Leather or cloth coverings for the legs. They were used for warmth and to protect the legs.
Métis	A person of mixed ancestry where one parent has European origins and the other has North American First Nations origins.
Moccasins	A type of shoe made from soft leather.

Orient	The countries and islands on the eastern side of the continent of Asia.
Pemmican	Buffalo meat that was dried, pounded, and mixed with fat and berries. It was stored in bags and used by the fur companies as a main food.
Portages	Areas between water routes where it is necessary to carry goods and boats by hand.
Red River Cart	A cart made entirely of wood and pulled by a single horse or ox. The cart had two large wheels and could carry 300-400 kilograms of freight. The wheels could not be greased because of its wooden construction and it made a horrible screeching noise.
Relative	Being part of the same family by birth or marriage.
Sash	A finger-woven belt made of wool approximately three metres long. It was tied at the waist to hold a coat closed, but had many uses such as a scarf or a rope.
Spoons	Wooden and later metal spoons reversed and held back-to-back between the fingers. A rhythm is produced by slapping the spoons on the thigh and on the other hand.
Survive	The ability to stay alive and cope with the challenges that come with life.
Tipis	A type of house made of canvas or animal hides and thin poles. These homes are very easy to setup and take down and were used by people who travelled a great deal.
Trade Goods	Items brought by European traders and used for trade in exchange for furs. This form of trade existed before money was used.
York Boats	Boats used in the fur trade on the main water systems of Canada. They replaced freight canoes because of their large carrying capacity. Eighteen men would make up the crew, one to give instructions, one to steer and sixteen to pull the oars.

Who are the Métis? Review Game

Materials:

Cards with words on one side and definition on the other side. See examples on the following pages. If you print the examples on labels, you can peel them off and stick to each side of a recipe card or cut cardstock to make game cards.

To Play:

Each child has a card and walks with the card in one hand and the other hand in the air looking for another student who has their hand up. Always pick the closest student unless they have just partnered up with that person.

Once partnered with another student, they take turns showing their word card (not the longer definition side) and having the other person try to give the definition. Let them know they can give hints if the person is stuck.

Then students switch cards and put their hands up to pair up with a new partner and practice their new card.

<h1>Indigenous</h1>	The original people of a geographic area. Indigenous peoples include First Nations, Métis and Inuit in Canada.
<h1>Batoche</h1>	A Métis settlement along the South Saskatchewan River, named after Francois Xavier dit Batoche. In 1885, the Métis under Louis Riel and Gabriel Dumont participated in an armed resistance against Canada at Batoche.
<h1>Birchbark</h1>	The bark collected from birch trees during the spring. The bark is waterproof, strong and flexible. It was often used for canoes.

What is Scrip?

Many people hear the word scrip, but have no idea what it is. It is not a commonly taught part of history, and unless you study Métis history, you probably won't even come across it.

The scrip system came about after the 1869-70 Resistance resulted in the creation of the Manitoba Act, which set aside 1.4 million acres of land to extinguish the Métis' Aboriginal title to the land. The two types of scrip created for this process were land and money scrip. When the system first started, the value of the scrip given to the Métis was either 160 acres of land or $160 cash to be used for land. The value was increased to 240 acres or $240 due to the rising cost of land.

The way scrip was handed out was by Scrip Commissions, which were like the Treaty Commissions. Scrip Commissioners would travel to the various Métis communities and gather applications for scrip.

The system was very flawed for many reasons, resulting in the loss of a land base for the Métis. The Scrip Commissions were advertised in newspapers and on posters, but many Métis were illiterate and missed the commissions. Sometimes the Scrip Commissioners missed entire Métis communities. There was also no protection against fraud. Many had their names forged without their knowledge. Speculators bought scrip from Métis for very low prices and then sold them to the main chartered banks in Canada. Speculators appeared to have gotten 12,560 money scrips out of 14,849 issued. They also managed to leave the Métis with only 1% of the 138,320 acres of land scrip issued in northwest Saskatchewan.

The Water Routes

The two great rivals in the fur trade, the Hudson's Bay Company and the North West Company, entered the western territory by two different routes. The Hudson's Bay Company via Port Nelson (York Factory) on Hudson Bay, and the North West Company via Grand Portage on Lake Superior, the former on tide-water and the latter on the Great Lakes. Their penetration inland was determined by these points and their expansion was based on the main water transportation which followed as a result.

The Hudson's Bay Company's main arterial route ran from York Factory to Norway House and along Lake Winnipeg to the Red River. It skirted the eastern shore of the lake to the 'Narrows', where it crossed over to the western shore to the Red River. The other main route was from Norway House along the northern shore of Lake Winnipeg to Grand Rapids at the mouth of the Saskatchewan, west to Cumberland House, Carlton House and on to Edmonton, a distance of nearly 1500 miles.

The North West Company's trunk route ran from Grand Portage to Bas de la Riviere and north along the eastern shore of Lake Winnipeg to the 'Narrows', where it crossed over to the western shore to Grand Rapids, and thence west to Cumberland Lake. Here it turned north to Frog Portage on the English-Churchill River, then west to Ile-a-la-Crosse, across La Loche-Methye Portage to the Athabasca. Another trunk route was from Bas de la Riviere to Red River.

Furs and supplies were fed into the main routes and there were in some areas minor but important alternative routes.

It is of interest to note that in the far flung activities of these two rival companies their paths, as far as these main trunk routes were concerned, coincided only at two places. One of these was for a relatively short distance at the 'Narrows' on Lake Winnipeg and the other from Grand Rapids up the Saskatchewan to Cumberland Lake, a total distance of approximately 225 miles.

The York boat of the Hudson's Bay Company manned by Orkneymen plied the Hayes and Lake Winnipeg. On these and all the larger prairie rivers, sail was spread whenever weather conditions permitted. It was about 40 to 45 feet long, with 9'-6" to 10'-6" beam, flat bottom and shallow draft of about 1'-6". It was heavily built with long, sloping stem and stem posts and lasted about 3 years. It had a crew of from 8-15 oarsmen, depending on the load capacity of from 3 to 4 tons. [1]

1. The York boat at Lower Fort Garry National Historic Park measures 43' 6" overall length; 10' 6" beam with carrying capacity about 4 tons. It is the last of the York boats.

‘Canot de Maitre’, the large canoe was used by the North West Company on the ‘voyageur’ route across the Great Lakes to Grand Portage, its western terminus. It was about 36 feet long and manned by 8-10 voyageurs, and a cargo capacity of approximately 6000 pounds. From Grand Portage inland the ‘canot du nord’ was put into service. It had a length of 20-25 feet, five or six paddlers and about half the cargo capacity of the ‘canot du maitre’. Later the North West Company used sailing vessels on Lake Superior and steam boats operated for a limited period and under restricted conditions on the Red, Assiniboine and Saskatchewan River system.

Who are the Métis?

The Métis Nation traces its origins to the Red River Valley area of North America. By the 20th century, the Métis had developed a unique culture and identity, which led them to be called otipêymisowak—The Independent Ones.

Following the Métis Nation Resistance at Red River from 1869 to 1870 and in Saskatchewan in 1885, it became unwise and sometimes dangerous to publicly self-identify as a Métis person. The Métis survived as a group largely by being invisible, a tactic that existed until the 1960s.

The Métis were a semi-nomadic people, who valued possessions that enabled travel, such as horses, carts and boats, as well as guns. These items are some of the things that indicate a Métis presence in historical images.

Honouring the Garneau Tree

Hundreds of community members gather to farewell an important mark of Métis heritage

On Friday, September 15, 2017 community members and descendants of the Garneau family assembled at the University of Alberta to celebrate and honour the legacy left behind by Laurent Garneau and his wife Eleanor; the historic Garneau Tree.

With hundreds of people gathering around the historic Manitoba Maple, the intimate ceremony touched not only on the prominent impact Laurent and Eleanor Garneau had on the Métis community, but also included personal memories and stories shared by family descendants.

Speakers of the ceremony included President of the MNA, Audrey Poitras, MNA Minister of Culture, Duane Zaraska, artist and professor, David Garneau, Annette Rondeau, Métis Elder, John McDonlad, Métis Veteran, community members, and University of Alberta representatives.

Brianna Lizotte fiddled throughout the ceremony bringing life to this historic celebration in Métis history.

Although, as of September 17, 2017 the Garneau Tree no longer stands on the University of Alberta grounds, the Garneau family and community members will continue to remember the legacy left by Laurent and Eleanor Garneau. Pieces of the Manitoba Maple have been saved by the Garneau family and community members and plans are underway so that they may be used to carry on the memory and history of the Garneau Tree.

AARON PAQUETTE First Nations Metis Writer, Artist and Keynote Speaker

Aaron Paquette is one of Canada's best-known First Nations Metis personalities.

The author of the bestselling book Lightfinder, Aaron is a talented artist, illustrator, goldsmith and cathedral stained glass artist. He is also a political commentator as well as a popular Keynote Speaker and Facilitator. Active in his community, Aaron sits on various civic, provincial and national Boards and Advisory Councils.

He is also fortunate to be alive.

It was on a cold August night in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada that Aaron found himself on the guardrails of the High Level Bridge. It was a moment of crisis.

Over the intervening years, through ups and downs and many mistakes and learning opportunities, Aaron found his way back. He found his a voice to his message that we all suffer, but none of us are alone. There is strength within us and around us that we can constantly draw on, not only to get us through tough times, but to propel us into the life we always wanted. When we use our courage to listen to it.

In great demand, Aaron is an engaging, exciting and inspiring speaker and gives generously of his spirit creating laughter, joy and learning. He has shared the stage with Phil Fontaine, Premier of Ontario Kathleen Wynne, Dr. Marie Wilson of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission, former Auditor General of Canada Sheilah Fraser and the Right Honorable Paul Martin.

In early 2013 he coined the term #Ottawapiskat which helped disrupt the way we look at the relationship between Indigenous Reservations and the Canadian Government in a constructive and humorous way. It was a stark and paradigm shifting marriage of the words Ottawa (Canada's capital city) and Attawapiskat, a northern community under the grip of extreme poverty and suffering. People immediately saw the potential and Making space for other's creativity and inventiveness is something that inspires Aaron's work and efforts. His bestselling, award winning novel Lightfinder is taught across Canada in schools, colleges and universities.

As an experienced facilitator, trainer and engaging public speaker, Aaron has worked with the Royal Conservatory's adjunct program -Learning Through the Arts- as both a Mentor Artist and as the First Nations Representative and Consultant in Alberta. This experience focused on providing the skills and background knowledge for infusing differentiated learning within the general curriculum in Alberta and the Northwest Territories.

Aaron has collaborated with Ministries, Teachers' Associations, and various community members and teachers, providing region wide teacher workshops and in- school experiences related to the art curriculum that also provide an FNMI perspective.

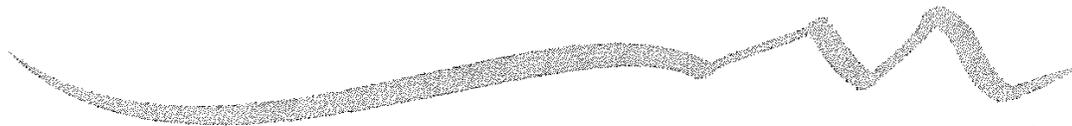

Through this collaboration, he also provides student workshops, professional development sessions and artist-in- residence programs.

A skilled communicator, Aaron has worked with Alberta Education in Professional Development, Reconciliation, Literacy, Overcoming Obstacles, Residential School & Forced Adoptions, Creativity, among other topics.

He has worked for years with the Edmonton Public School Board with both in-class sessions and special sessions for promising young artists. The Catholic School Boards in the Central and Northern Alberta region have also enlisted Aaron in many projects ranging from elementary school visits that tie art into curricular learning to mural painting with High School students.

Aaron also has regular art shows in Galleries across Canada, takes on public art commissions. He works as a guest curator for The Art Gallery of Alberta, St. Albert's public Gallery: Profiles, and the McMullen Gallery at the University of Alberta Hospital. He has had a traveling exhibit with the Art Gallery of Alberta called Halfbreed Mythology.

Aaron is the co-founder and CEO of the Cree8 Success Education Conference.

Cruncher: a fun fast-facts game about Indigenous peoples in Canada

Instructions for folding a cruncher

1. Print the Cruncher on the following page.
2. Cut your printed paper into a square by following the dotted lines.
3. Colour the illustrations on your cruncher.
4. With the illustrations facing down, bring all the corners of the paper to the center of the square.
5. Flip your paper over. The coloured side should be facing up.
6. Again, bring all the corners to the center of the square. All the corners should meet in the center. Crease the edges.
7. Fold the paper in half vertically and unfold it.
8. Fold the paper horizontally and unfold it.
9. Using both hands, slide your thumb and index fingers underneath the flaps to open your paper and start crunching!

How to play the game

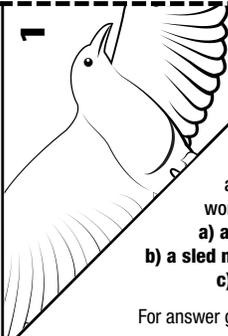

1. Count out the number of letters in your name at the same time as you open and close your cruncher.
2. Choose a number from one of the Indigenous illustrations on the inside triangles.
3. Count out the number you've chosen on the inside triangles at the same time as you open and close your cruncher.
4. Again, choose a number from one of the Indigenous illustrations on the inside triangles, but this time peek under the flap and read the question at the top.
5. The sentence under the question will tell you where to go to find the answer. Go there and see if you answered right! If not, you will have learned something new.
6. Go cruncher crazy and repeat the steps as many times as you want!

Library and Archive Canada: Mikan no. 4820180

Title: [View of three men and two teams of dogs hitched to carioles looking towards the Rocky Mountains at Jasper House, Alberta]. Original title: Looking South from Jasper House (Rocky Mts).

Additional Information: During the fur trade era, the Métis used carioles in winter. Pulled by a dog team, the cariole transported a passenger or cargo. A dog team driver would run along behind the cariole sled while it was under way shouting commands to the dogs to guide their pace and direction of movement. The term cariole became more commonly used for a toboggan-like sled with sides made from hide or canvas. Birch boards were often used for the toboggan planking.
